Palaeohistoria 47/48 (2005/2006) P. A. J. Attema, M. A. Los-Weijns, N. D. Maring-Van der Pers, 2006-12-31 The annual journal Palaeohistoria is edited by the staff of the Groningen Institute of Archaeology and carries detailed articles on material culture analysis of radiocarbon data and the results of excavations surveys and coring campaigns Berichten van de Rijksdienst voor het Oudheidkundig Bodemonderzoek Netherlands. Rijksdienst voor het Oudheidkundig

Bodemonderzoek,2006 Roman Period Statuettes in the Netherlands and beyond Christel Veen,2025-10-01 The subject of this study is a relatively rare category of artefacts bronze and terracotta statuettes that represent deities human figures and animals They were introduced in the northwestern provinces by Roman troops from the end of the 1st century BCE onwards The statuettes have been recovered from military and non military settlements the surrounding landscape and to a far lesser extent from sanctuaries and graves Until now their meaning and function have seldom been analysed in relation to their find spots Contrary to traditional studies they have been examined as one separate category of artefacts which offers new insights into the distribution pattern and iconographic representation of deities When studying a group of artefacts a large research area or a large dataset is required as well as dateable artefacts and find contexts These conditions do not apply to the Netherlands and to the majority of statuettes that are central to this study Moreover although the changing appearance of statuettes suggest a transformation of cults the identities of the owners of these statuettes remain invisible to us Therefore the issue of Romanization is not put central here Instead the focus is on a specific aspect of religion known as lived religion within the wider subject of its transformation in the Roman period how people used statuettes in everyday life in the context of their houses and settlements

The Cultural Landscape & Heritage Paradox Tom Bloemers,Henk Kars,Arnold Van der Valk,2010 The basic problem is to what extent we can know past and mainly invisible landscapes and how we can use this still hidden knowledge for actual sustainable management of landscape s cultural and historical values It has also been acknowledged that heritage management is increasingly about the management of future change rather than simply protection This presents us with a paradox to preserve our historic environment we have to collaborate with those who wish to transform it and in order to apply our expert knowledge we have to make it suitable for policy and society The answer presented by the Protection and Development of the Dutch Archaeological Historical Landscape programme pdl bbo is an integrative landscape approach which applies inter and transdisciplinarity establishing links between archaeological historical heritage and planning and between research and policy

Roman Military Architecture on the Frontiers Rob Collins, Matt Symonds, Meike Weber, 2015-11-30 The Roman army was one of the most astounding organizations in the ancient world and much of the success of the Roman empire can be attributed to its soldiers Archaeological remains and ancient texts provide detailed testimonies that have allowed scholars to understand and reconstruct the army's organization and activities This interest has traditionally worked in tandem with the study of Roman frontiers Historically the early imperial period and in particular the emergence of the frontiers has been the focus of research During those investigations however the remains of the later Roman army were also frequently encountered if not always understood Recent decades have brought a burgeoning interest in not only the later Roman army but also late antiquity more widely It is the aim of this volume to demonstrate that while scholars grappling with the late Roman army may want for a rich corpus of inscriptions and easily identifiable military installations research is revealing a dynamic less predictable force that was adapting to a changing world in terms of both external threats and its own internal structures The dynamism and ingenuity of the late Roman army provides a breath of fresh air after the suffocating uniformity of its forbears The late Roman army was a vital and influential element in the late antique empire Having evolved through the 3rd century and been formally reorganized under Diocletian and Constantine the limitanei guarded the frontiers while the comitatenses provided mobile armies that were fielded against external enemies and internal threats The transformation of the early imperial army to the late antique army is documented in the rich array of texts from the period supplemented by a perhaps surprisingly rich archaeological record Oudheidkundig jaarboek
