RETAIL MANAGEMENT IN INDIA For Undergraduate Vocational and Business Management Students

Prof. Dr. Dileep Kumar M.,Dr. Vijyata, Diversity and Philanthropy at African American Museums Patricia A. Banks,2019-04-30 Diversity and Philanthropy at African American Museums is the first scholarly book to analyze contemporary African American museums from a multifaceted perspective While it puts a spotlight on the issues and challenges related to racial politics that black museums collectively face in the 21st century it also shines a light on how they intersect with corporate culture youth culture and the broader cultural world Turning the lens to philanthropy in the contemporary era Banks throws light on the establishment side of African American museums and demonstrates how this contrasts with their grassroots foundations Drawing on over 80 in depth interviews with trustees and other supporters of African American museums across the United States this book offers an inside look at the world of cultural philanthropy While patrons are bound together by being among the distinct group of cultural philanthropists who support black museums the motivations and meanings underlying their giving depart in both subtle and considerable ways depending on race and ethnicity profession generation and lifestyle Revealing not only why black museums matter in the eyes of supporters the book also complicates the conventional view that social class drives giving to cultural nonprofits It also paints a vivid portrait of how diversity colors cultural philanthropy and philanthropy more broadly in the 21st century Diversity and Philanthropy at African American Museums will be a valuable resource for scholars and practitioners engaged with African American heritage It will also offer important insights for academics as well as cultural administrators nonprofit leaders and fundraisers who are concerned with philanthropy and diversity Half Life Lillian Clark,2020-06-09 An overachiever enrolls in an experimental clone study to prove that two of her own heads are better than one in this fast paced near future adventure that s Black Mirror meets Becky Albertalli There aren t enough hours in the day for Lucille perfectionist overachiever to do everything she has to do and there certainly aren't enough hours to hang out with friends, fall in love, get in trouble, all the teenage things she knows she should want to be doing instead of preparing for a flawless future. So when she sees an ad for Life2 Do more Be more she's intrigued. The company is looking for beta testers to enroll in an experimental clone program and in the aftermath of a series of disappointments, Lucille is feeling reckless enough to jump in. At first it's perfect: her clone Lucy is exactly what she needed to make her life manageable and have time for a social life. But it doesn't take long for Lucy to become more Lucy and less Lucille, and Lucille is forced to stop looking at Lucy as a reflection and start seeing her as a window, a glimpse at someone else living her own life but better. Lucy does what she really wants to, not what she thinks she should want to, and Lucille is left wondering how much she was even a part of the perfect life she'd constructed for herself. Lucille wanted Lucy to help her relationships with everyone else, but how can she do that without first rectifying her relationship with herself? Like a PG-13 mash-up of Booksmart and Black Mirror, Clark's sophomore novel delivers both twisty sci-fi suspense and a highly relatable account of the search for self-determination and self-worth. Booklist Clark makes this territory fresh, and teens questioning their own self-worth will be drawn to this novel. A novel that is near-future enough to appeal to sci-fi fans as well as general audiences who like to ask, "What if?" SLJ
