Oil & Gas Databook for Developing Countries Derek Fee, 2012-12-06 In order to alleviate their problems many less developed countries LDCs are endeavoring to develop to the full their energy resources and in particular their hydrocarbon resources However the development of these resources is hindered by many factors among which are the following badly established estimates of indigenous resources under exploration lack of competent Government institutions to monitor the hydrocarbon sector lack of local markets to exploit non oil hydrocarbon finds refineries which are outdated producing the wrong product mix and where economies of scale make upgrading difficult The purpose of this work is to examine the hydrocarbon sector in the African Caribbean and Pacific ACP group of countries An examination of such a diverse group of nations on a global scale is difficult since the group includes relatively rich countries such as Trinidad and Tobago with a GNP per capita of 4000 to the sub Saharan countries such as Mali with a GNP per capita of 120 No easy solutions will be presented to improve the present energy situation in these countries but the reasons for the lack of hydrocarbon development will be examined The work of the World Bank and similar international financial institutions will be assessed and a potted review of the hydrocarbon sector in each country will be presented

Commission of Immigration and Housing,1919 The Indonesian Production Sharing Contract:An Investor's Perspective
Tengku Nathan Machmud,2000-07-12 The model contract for oil and gas development known as the Production Sharing Contract PSC originated in Indonesia in 1966 and enjoyed over a decade of successful implementation with minor adjustments in several oil producing countries In more recent years however numerous problems have arisen as changes in economic realities have driven the level of private investment down This penetrating study the only one of its kind uses legal analysis as well as historical data to pinpoint the reasons for the initial success of the PSC and for its subsequent and persistent frustrations for investors The author first examines the original Indonesian contract along with the variants adopted in Malaysia and the People s Republic of China and then proceeds to an in depth analysis of the main clauses and their amendments and execution in all three countries Taking into account various commissioned surveys and emerging policies and strategies espoused by both governments and industry representatives he concludes with a detailed proposal for an overhauled contract that allows for meaningful adjustments or even renegotiation when the balance of interests between parties changes substantially Focusing as it does on some central issues in global economic development The Indonesian Production Sharing Contract will be of great value to lawyers multinational corporate executives and policymakers far beyond the Asia Pacific region Private Foreign Investment and Economic Development R. Talal Abdulla Al-Emadi, 2019-03-29 This book addresses a question of importance for both theory and practice Why are joint venture agreements preferred over other types of agreements such as concession agreements service contracts and production sharing agreements in the Qatari gas industry On a theoretical level the author analyses this decision making process by developing an approach that integrates a micro level analysis more specifically within international oil companies with a macro level analysis that spring from the organisational culture of the Qatari gas industry At the micro level the author proposes John Dunning s eclectic paradigm as one set of theoretical ideas to explaining one element of the decision making process leading to the preference for joint venture agreements that is that of international oil companies At the macro level the author proposes Antony Giddens structuration theory as another set of theoretical ideas to explaining another part of this decision making process that is how it is being shaped by the organisational culture of the Qatari gas industry On an empirical level the proposed book applies a combination of a micro economic approach such as Dunning s eclectic paradigm with a macro sociological approach such as Giddens structuration theory by empirical investigation Grounded on a qualitative strategy that focuses on the meaning making which brings together different perspectives of this decision making process including those of international oil companies and the organisational culture of the Qatari gas industry the proposed book utilises a case study design named the case of the Qatari gas industry The author employs a triangulation of data collection techniques to access empirical data analysing official documents and semi structured interviews a sample of the interview questions are included in an appendix to the proposed books In line with the qualitative nature of this proposed book a thematic Analysis is adopted to interpret data based on Dunning s eclectic paradigm at the micro level and Giddens structuration theory at the macro level In doing so this book connects theory with practice by investigating the preference for joint venture agreements in the case of the Qatari industry by the combined application of one of the most effective frameworks for explaining foreign direct investment named Dunning s eclectic paradigm along with the most complex sociological framework that offers a rich definition of organisational culture named Giddens structuration theory Audience could include academics professionals and graduate and senior undergraduate students The Off-Shore Petroleum Resources of South-East Asia Corazón Morales Siddayao, 2013-03-13 | INTEREST in the off shore petroleum resources of South East Asia was manifested in the 1960s when development in off shore technology allowed oil companies to search beyond prospective land areas The dramatic increases in oil prices in the early 1970s but more particularly the events of 1973 and 1974 when world oil prices were quadrupled by the oil exporting nations and major supply cutbacks were experienced by certain developed nations further heightened this interest Cost price relationships had not only improved and made off shore oil in hitherto less attractive areas commercially prospective nations that were net importers and whose international exchange reserves were strained by the high import costs of foreign oil also found it prudent to begin looking for indigenous resources and to encourage such search The search for and discovery of petroleum in South East Asia on the scale in which it has been conducted in the last ten years was new to the region. It was natural therefore for students of South East Asia to raise questions about its progress, questions concerning international relations, social impacts and economic policy implications. The purpose of this study is to try and answer the question: What are the potentials for conflicts or cooperation among nations arising from the search for petroleum resources in the seabeds of South East Asia? The problem of conflicts or cooperation among nations is a topic that has many facets and may involve a multitude of issues, for example legal, economic, technical, security, social, etc.

The Promoting and Licensing of Petroleum Prospective Acreage Michael Bunter, 2002-01-17. This detailed work is based on more than ten years' experience in conducting tenders for the licensing of petroleum prospective acreage on behalf of a number of sovereign governments in Europe, Africa and the former Soviet Union. It explains the processes of licensing from the points of view of the two main protagonists: the government bodies and the international oil companies. The book also gives due prominence to the interests of the host communities and to the environment as well as to the neighbouring states and the other participants who may be affected by the licensing process. In the modern world, petroleum licensing takes place in the full glare of attention from the press and from public opinion. This work breaks new ground in recommending ways in which government and the oil companies may devise best practice in licensing to serve the interest of all parties and also an ethical business environment.

LASTING SOLUTION TO OIL-AND-FOOD CRISES STEVE Dr. ESOMBA, 2012-05-29. Since the mid 1980s or even earlier, the global economy has continuously been plagued by one energy and food crisis or another. The ups and downs of the energy industry and market buoy and bubble along with food commodity prices. Every slight movement backwards or forward of crude features impacts food commodity prices on which the poor as well as the rich depend on for survival. This umbilical link between oil prices and food prices tortures our swelling populations, especially those in poor, underdeveloped countries. LASTING SOLUTIONS TO OIL AND FOOD PRICES is a bold attempt to address permanent solutions to this appalling situation. More ideas are needed and much more bolder action. We must tackle these perpetual oil and food problems. Our populations keep increasing. Many teeming mouths to feed. Your contribution is welcome. Thanks.

Arbitration and Renegotiation of International Investment Agreements: A Study with Particular Reference to Means of Conflict Avoidance Under Natural Resources Investment Agreements Wolfgang Peter, Jean-Quentin de Kuyper, Bénédicte de Candolle, 1995-06-08. This book is a second revised edition of the original 1986 publication. Since then, the issue of contract change has increasingly challenged the business community and legal practitioners. The world-wide recession may well have accelerated the need to secure contractual relationships by reasonable flexibility. Successful foreign investment is a relentless challenge, subject to many unpredictable errors. Of all these variables, however, successful investment is most dependent on the investor-host country relationship, which is the object of the present study. In particular, the pressure by host countries for contract change and its counterpart, the investor's defence of contract stability. The book is essentially a reference handbook for legal practitioners. It

analyzes a variety of increasingly important questions concerning international investment agreements that come under pressure for change by one of the contracting parties either a transnational corporation or a host country government The seven case studies and the analytical chapters which follow are based on the author's research and the assistance of corporate and government officials experts from the United Nations and other organizations and members of academic research institutes

Oil and the International Economy Georg Koopmann, 2022-01-26 The oil price increases of the 1970s left deep marks on the world economy They led to a massive redistribution of income in favor of oil producing countries and caused serious disruption of growth imbalances in foreign trade and problems of stability in oil importing countries Despite the present levelling off the authors suggest that more price increases remain a distinct possibility Oil and the International Economy examines the effects of rising oil prices on the international financial system and identifies ways that oil importing countries can overcome the financial and adjustment problems caused by them The authors project the long term trend in real oil prices and present economic policy options to help avoid future financial problems for industrialized and developing nations alike
