Mark Harwood, Luciano L'Abate, 2009-11-24 Self help is big business but alas not a scientific business The estimated 10 billion that is with a billion spent each year on self help in the United States is rarely guided by research or monitored by mental health professionals Instead marketing and metaphysics triumph The more outrageous the miraculous cure and the revolutionary secret the better the sales Of the 3 000 plus self help books published each year only a dozen contain controlled research documenting their effectiveness as stand alone self help Of the 20 000 plus psychological and relationship web sites available on the Internet only a couple hundred meet professional standards for accuracy and balance Most in fact sell a commercial product Pity the layperson or for that matter the practitioner trying to navigate the self help morass We are bombarded with thousands of potential resources and contradictory advice Should we seek wisdom in a self help book an online site a 12 step group an engaging autobiography a treatment manual an inspiring movie or distance writing Should we just do it or just say no Work toward change or accept what is Love your inner child or grow out of your Peter Pan I become confused and discouraged just contemplating the choices Administration of Intercollegiate

Keith,2004-03-01 Family Therapy as an Alternative to Medication critically and passionately explores the concepts and practices that constitute the interface between family systems based psychotherapy and modern biological psychiatry This diverse collection of essays eight by psychiatrists is neither for nor against medication but takes a skeptical view of the unquestioned dominance that medication based treatments have achieved among mental health practitioners Its viewpoint is that therapeutic attention to context and relationships regularly diminished when medications are prescribed interferes with the development of psychiatric disorders adds to maturity and expands consciousness Clinical examples by both practitioners and patients are used to define potential problems that arise from trying to combine a medical model with family systems work and also illustrate the decision making processes and methods for applying family systems based therapies This book will stimulate thoughtful conversation among students and practitioners of all mental health disciplines Gaia

Connections Alan S. Miller,2003 Gaia Connections addresses several arenas of concern as humankind faces an escalating ecological and moral crisis in this new millennium Beginning with an overview of the history of philosophy and the importance of traditional thinking on modern day ethical reflection the book then looks at the development of theories of justice the problems of equity in global human relations the inability of existing economic systems to resolve our human and environmental dilemmas the unnatural connections now obtaining between genuine human need and the technological drift of science the new genetics and reproductive technologies and the nature of modern war The study concludes with some historical perspectives on American environmental history and the urgent need for change in our ecoethical social and value systems The principal focal areas of the original edition are continued the actual state of the global environment today the imperative for the development of sustainable economic and resource systems the movement within much of science toward an almost universal biological determinism and the need for a reaffirmation of an ethical value system which places the needs of people before the needs of property and profits The revised edition not only updates these data and the concerns of the original book but also visits a number of new issues the movement for environmental justice the connections between global poverty and the now almost universal allegiance to a new world market and free trade system the progress and the dilemmas of molecular biology and genetic engineering and the growing disarray within the global systems of political economy
