Artificial Intelligence in Animal Behaviour, Veterinary Behaviour and Neurology Holger Andreas Volk, Jasmin Nicole Nessler, Anna Zamansky, Sebastian Meller, Annika

Bremhorst,2025-08-18 The new leap innovation Artificial Intelligence AI will significantly accelerate the speed of science and translate into clinical practice faster than clinicians ever have been used to Machine and deep learning techniques are now readily available to analyze large and complex data sets providing veterinary scientists with a tool to not only better understand complex behaviour traits and neurological conditions but also to delve into the nuances of animal behaviour itself AI can now write plausible sounding text recognize written or spoken human words recognize objects in images or analyze large amounts of data Different fields of applications are known so far such as improving and speeding up interpretation of radiologic findings interpretation of electroencephalography diagnosis of autism in children objectifying ataxia in dogs detecting pain in cats and assessing and characterizing animal behaviours across species At the time of writing more than 500 AI based algorithms have been approved by the FDA for human medicine most of which are used in radiology and neurology In veterinary neurology and animal behavioural science only a limited amount of research on AI has been done so far Most algorithms presented are merely fragments of usable programs and are not suitable for clinical application Therefore ready to use applications are rare yet essential for implementing AI into everyday routine diagnostic work ups scientific research and animal behavioural assessments The research topic will help to unite current efforts and provide a collection of articles to address some of the current scientific and behavioural gaps In the future a clinician might have a clinical decision support tool that generates accurate estimations of likely outcomes of neurological disease and animal behaviour combining anamnestic behavioural clinical pathology and imaging information We are interested in original research systematic reviews and opinion papers not only about the scope and potential of AI for Veterinary Behavior and Neurology but also about the intersection of AI with the study of animal behaviour ethical considerations and pitfalls that the development of AI generated tools could present Potential themes therefore include but are not limited to AI to recognize monitor diagnose or characterise behaviour neurological deficits or conditions including a detailed analysis of animal behaviour across a variety of contexts and species AI to assess behavioural states in both clinical and natural environments AI to interpret scientific clinical data sets such as clinical pathology omics imaging EEG data and behaviour metrics Ethical and legal considerations when applying or using AI tools in the study of animal behaviour and veterinary medicine Potential of AI to enhance clinical practice in veterinary behavioural medicine veterinary neurology and animal behaviour research Potential of AI enhanced diagnostic and behavioural assessment tools with animals

Impact Evaluation using the Translational Science Benefits Model Framework in the National Center for Advancing Translational Science Clinical and Translational Science Award Program Pamela Davidson,Joe Hunt,Douglas Luke,Anna La Manna,2025-11-10 Knowledge translation is a critical activity that helps transform research results into new practices and policies that benefit health and society Similar to other countries the US has initiated a translational science research program in clinical research and public health In the US the National Institutes of Health NIH and the National Center for Advancing Translational Science

NCATS have addressed this challenge through the Clinical and Translational Science Award CTSA Program. The charge of the CTSA Program is to transform the organization and infrastructure of the academic research enterprise to facilitate the movement of discoveries from clinical science to the bedside and community. Documenting the results of these efforts is a necessary component to assess outcomes, health and social impacts, and support continuous improvement. In the CTSA program, the 60 CTSA hubs primarily located at academic health sciences research institutes across the nation are just starting to systematically measure and evaluate the impacts of their activities. One example of tracking and assessing impact is the Translational Science Benefits Model (TSBM) introduced in 2018, which is one of the first frameworks for standardized documentation and dissemination of data on outcomes and impacts of translational science and translational research. Additionally, this Research Topic will explore and compare models and measurement tools used to assess the impact of translational science research internationally. This Research Topic will highlight the use of the Translational Science Benefits Model (TSBM) and other impact evaluation models applied by investigators across a wide spectrum of medical and public health areas, including CTSA hubs, community, international partners, and others. Although translational science is still in its infancy, much work is being conducted nationally and internationally to integrate impact evaluation on medical and public health practice, the economy, and health policy. In terms of a prevention orientation, the TSBM can be used to track program development, implementation, and impacts on preventing and addressing disease. The TSBM framework is also useful for changing the culture of academic research settings to place more value on health and social impacts, as well as providing training opportunities for early career investigators on how to design for impact at the beginning of programmatic research. The TSBM framework has been successfully deployed within the context of the CTSA Program. Sharing successful applications of the TSBM across a wider range of research, dissemination, and implementation is needed to fully understand its strengths and limitations, to refine and improve it further, and to study its application in a variety of contexts. Hence, this model has the potential to become a standard for systematic, comparable reporting of translational science impact on health and societal benefits. We aim to identify similar impact models deployed within international research settings. The scope of this Research Topic includes advances in data collection, methodology, analysis, and results from the application of the TSBM in the CTSA Program, as well as with community and international partners. Specific themes might include, but are not limited to: Development and use of quantitative metrics and qualitative measures using the TSBM; TSBM as an educational intervention to train junior investigators on impact in translational science; Longitudinal evaluation to show potential and demonstrated impact in specific research areas, e.g., software development, public health policy change; Integrating social determinants of health, disparities, and equity in impact evaluation; Application of TSBM results to improve operations and translational science in core areas of CTSA hubs; TSBM is used to deliver new programs, applications, and community engagement to build cases in the 4 domains. Examples of TSBM used to track research findings into public health practice.
