

CHILD NURSE PERSONAL STATEMENT SAMPLE

Perhaps it was growing up in a large family, but I have always had a soft spot for taking care of and working with younger children. As I grew older and developed an interest in the biological sciences, I realized that I could combine my interests in medicine with my desire to help younger patients through becoming a nurse. Over the years, I have striven to gain the necessary experience in the field to be able to apply for a position in a nursing program. Now, I am excited to submit this child nurse personal statement sample to demonstrate my interest and passion for pediatric nursing care.

As part of a service trip that I took two years ago, I was part of a medical team that provided basic care to the residents of a small village in South America. Many of these patients were children who came in with a variety of conditions, many that are not prevalent in more developed countries. Although there was a large language barrier, we were still able to communicate, and my interactions with the children in the village has inspired me to continue pursuing my goal of returning to the United States and completing a program in Pediatric Nursing.

Just as Pediatrics is a much different field than adult medicine, I know that pediatric nursing will also require a set of specialized skills that I will need to hone during my time in this nursing program. Through customized lectures, I will be able to learn about both classic concepts in child healthcare as well as cutting-edge research bringing new treatments to the field. Additionally, I will be able to gain the clinical experience that I will need to work with smaller patients. Taken together, the experience that I have in this nursing program will give me the skills that I will need to become a child nurse in the future.
