Musicking TikTok Juan Bermúdez, 2024-12-12 This ethnographic work about TikTok's musicking in a glocal Austrian context complements and builds upon ethnomusicological assumptions, theories, and methods for the study of musical practices in digital spaces. An overview of elements that make up TikTok's interface as well as the technical performative possibilities that it allows, this book introduces a general categorization of existing performance types and how TikTokers appropriate the platform to make their music. It illustrates how some TikTokers became aware of and began using TikTok and it reviews some of the different strategies TikTokers apply to learn how to use the application and successfully develop their performances. Bermúdez explores how performers move from being ordinary users to becoming TikTokers, developing and performing an identity he calls TikTok Persona. Moreover, he discusses how some TikTok practices can and have occurred across multiple interconnected platforms and he examines how localities are articulated and negotiated in these contexts. Bermúdez argues for an understanding of musicking as a multimedia practice that different actors create and experience individually in everyday synchronous and asynchronous physical and digital situations. The so-called TikTokers create a sense of identity and community through their performances. This study suggests that a digital performance can be, aside from a representation of reality, an integral part of it, serving as a fundamental space for constructing and performing identity.

communication disorders neuropsychology and computer science Researchers are drawn to the field from a variety of backgrounds bringing along a variety of experimental techniques as well as widely varying theoretical perspectives Much work in neurolinguistics is informed by models in psycholinguistics and theoretical linguistics and is focused on investigating how the brain can implement the processes that theoretical and psycholinguistics proposes are necessary in producing and comprehending language Neurologists study the physiological mechanisms by which the brain processes information related to language and evaluate linguistic and psycholinguistic theories using aphasiology brain imaging electrophysiology and computer modeling Neuroscience is the scientific study of the nervous system Traditionally neuroscience has been seen as a branch of biology However it is currently an interdisciplinary science that collaborates with other fields such as chemistry computer engineering linguistics mathematics medicine and allied disciplines philosophy physics and psychology The term neurobiology is usually used interchangeably with the term neuroscience although the former refers specifically to the biology of the nervous system whereas the latter refers to the entire science of the nervous system The scope of neuroscience has broadened to include different approaches used to study the molecular cellular developmental structural functional evolutionary computational and medical aspects of the nervous system The techniques used by neuroscientists have also expanded enormously from molecular and cellular studies of individual nerve to imaging of sensory and motor tasks in the brain Recent theoretical advances in neuroscience have also been aided by the study of neural networks Given the increasing number of scientists who study the nervous system several prominent neuroscience organizations have been formed to provide a forum to all neuroscientists and educators Forensic linguistics is the application of linguistic knowledge methods and insights to the forensic context of law language crime investigation trial and judicial procedure It is a branch of applied linguistics There are principally three areas of application for linguists working in forensic contexts understanding the language of the written law understanding language use in forensic and judicial processes and the provision of linguistic evidence The discipline of forensic linguistics is not homogenous it involves a range of experts and researchers in different areas of the field A linguistic fingerprint is a concept put forward by some scholars that each human being uses language differently and that this difference between people involves a collection of markers which stamps a speaker writer as unique similar to a fingerprint Under this view it is assumed that every individual uses languages differently and this difference can be observed as a fingerprint It is formed as a result of a merged language style A person's linguistic fingerprint can be reconstructed from the individual's daily interactions and relate to a variety of self reported personality characteristics situational variables and physiological markers e.g blood pressure cortisol testosterone In the process of an investigation the emphasis should be on the relative rather than the absolute difference between the authors and how investigators can classify their texts however argues that although the concept of linguistic fingerprinting is attractive to law enforcement agencies there is so far little hard evidence to support the notion In order to carry out the Cesium test on habits of utilizing two to three letter words and vowel initial words in a sentential clause the occurrences of each type of word in the text must be identified and the distribution plotted in each sentence The Cesium distribution for these two habits will be compared with the average sentence length of the text The two sets of values should track each other Any altered section of the text would show a distinct discrepancy between the values of the two reference points The tampered section will exhibit a different pattern from the rest of the text
