Geropsychology Nancy A. Pachana, Ken Laidlaw, Bob G. Knight, 2010 Geropsychology the field of psychology concerned with the psychological behavioural biological and social aspects of aging has developed rapidly in the past 2 decades in response to the ever increasing aging population worldwide This clinical casebook describes current best practice in managing complex cases involving common mental health issues in later life It includes chapters by leading authorities in the field both experienced clinicians and educators who address contemporary issues in clinical work with older adults It will be useful for clinicians wishing to update their practice educators looking for case material to enrich their didactic courses and students and fledgling practitioners seeking guidance in approaching casework with older adults The book spans the international arena of practice illustrating both universal themes in clinical work as well as regional practice issues that can inform health professionals more broadly Each chapter is designed to inform the reader about the rich context in which clinical work occurs including how the setting the therapist's approach and the nature of the problem interact to influence outcomes Throughout the cases have been carefully chosen to reflect archetypal scenarios and provide practical empirically informed guidance for assessment formulation and interventions The cases included deal with complex issues of diagnosis and formulation assessment and intervention techniques ethical and legal issues and interdisciplinary perspectives that will appeal to a wide range of mental health professionals The text provides points for reflection from the cases as well as key references in the area with an emphasis on current issues and theoretical perspectives Providing a range of expertise in a single source this book is an invaluable resource for anyone dealing with the mental health needs of older people Provided by publisher

APA Handbook of Clinical Geropsychology Peter A. Lichtenberg, Benjamin T. Mast, 2015 V 1 History and status of the field and perspectives on aging v 2 Assessment treatment and issues of later life Comprehensive Clinical Psychology A.S. Bellack, Michel Hersen, 1998-09-03 Clinical Geropsychology Barry A. Edelstein, Troelstra, 2001 The principal goal of Clinical Geropsychology was to assemble the contributions of a group of international experts whose work has focused on the psychology of aging and the field of clinical geropsychology The chapters in this volume survey many of the significant contributions to our knowledge of the mental health problems of older adults their clinical assessment and the empirical support for our clinical interventions In 1900 the average life expectancy in the USA was 49 years There was relatively little need at that time for a psychology of aging much less a clinical psychology of aging That situation has dramatically changed over the past century and will continue to do so for many years Today adults 65 years of age and older comprise approximately 12.7% of the US population With increasing age come increased risks of physical health problems and the field of clinical geropsychology continues to evolve as more researchers and clinicians begin to address the mental health needs of our increasing older adult population Clinical Geropsychology examines the emerging field of clinical psychology beginning with a review of this area of research presenting important epidemiological information The volume then offers a detailed look at issues that range from analyzing physiological and cognitive aspects to cognitive changes and specific neurological disorders common among older adults Specific topics covered include sexuality bereavement anxiety substance abuse and schizophrenia Each chapter presents a summary of clinical research and its practical application Voids in the knowledge base are also noted along with recommendations for the direction of future investigations The volume also addresses management problems such as incontinence wandering and aggressive behavior and reviews the various mental health care systems available in different countries Clinical Geropsychology was previously published as Volume 7 of the highly acclaimed major reference work Comprehensive Clinical Psychology the single most comprehensive source of information in the field of Clinical Psychology Comprehensive Clinical Psychology: Clinical geropsychology Alan S. Bellack, Michel Hersen, 1998 APA Handbook of Clinical Geropsychology Peter A. Lichtenberg, Benjamin T. Mast, Brian D. Carpenter, Julie Loebach Wetherell, 2015 The APA Handbook of Clinical Geropsychology offers a well balanced scientist practitioner approach with chapters that succinctly review empirical research across a broad range of areas and offer practical approaches for the application of theory to everyday practice with the aging population The handbook reviews the history of clinical geropsychology and geropsychology practice to help the reader better understand how the field has grown over the past 30 plus years and to assess the several directions in which it is headed Chapter authors highlight strength based approaches to human development and aging review the status of evidence based treatment explore the interface of geriatric medicine and clinical psychotherapy review several normal aging areas of research and discuss such common psychological neurological and other medical issues common in aging as depression late life anxiety disorders schizophrenia alcohol abuse and substance misuse suicidal behavior mild cognitive impairment Alzheimer s and many more The reader will not only gain knowledge about foundational competencies in the field of clinical geropsychology but will also find a treasure of information related to assessment intervention and consultation in this continually evolving field Publicity materials PsycINFO Database Record c 2015 APA all rights reserved The Oxford Handbook of Clinical Psychology Jasper Stark, 2017-03-07 The Oxford Handbook of Clinical Psychology synthesizes these decades of literature in one extraordinary volume Comprising chapters from the foremost scholars in clinical psychology the handbook provides even and authoritative coverage of the research practice and policy factors that combine to form today s clinical psychology landscape

Geropsychology and Long Term Care Erlene Rosowsky, Joseph M. Casciani, Merla Arnold, 2010-01-23 It is with great pride that the Psychologists in Long Term Care PLTC have sponsored The Professional Educational Long Term Care Training Manual and now its second iteration Geropsychology and Long Term Care A Practitioner s Guide Education of psychologists working in long term care settings is consistent with PLTC s mission to assure the provision of high quality psychological services for a neglected sector of the population i e residents in nursing homes and assisted living communities To this end direct training of generalist psychologists in the nuances of psychological care delivery in long term care settings has been a major priority It is a tribute to the accelerating nature of research in long term care settings that a revision is now necessary

After all the Professional Educational Training Manual's initial publication date was only in 2001. However, in the intervening years, much progress has been made in addressing assessment and intervention strategies tailored to the needs of this frail but quite diverse population. It is so gratifying to be able to say that there is now a corpus of scientific knowledge to guide long-term care service delivery in long-term care settings.
