Kinship and Collective Action Gero Bauer, Anya Heise-von der Lippe, Nicole Hirschfelder, Katharina Luther, 2020-09-28 Make kin not babies Donna Haraway demands in an attempt to offer new and creative ways of thinking what kinship might mean in an age of ecological devastation At the same time the emergence of a seemingly new culture of public protest and political opinion have provoked scholars such as Judith Butler to address the contexts and dynamics of public collective action This volume explores the dynamic relationship between structures of kinship and the material conditions under which collective action emerges from a literary and cultural studies perspective How are kinship and collective action negotiated in literature the arts or in specific historical moments and how does this affect the role of representation How have conceptualizations of both concepts developed over time and what can we infer from this for questions of kinship and collective action today

The Routledge Handbook of Collective Intentionality Marija Jankovic, Kirk Ludwig, 2017-11-02 The Routledge Handbook of Collective Intentionality provides a wide ranging survey of topics in a rapidly expanding area of interdisciplinary research It consists of 36 chapters written exclusively for this volume by an international team of experts What is distinctive about the study of collective intentionality within the broader study of social interactions and structures is its focus on the conceptual and psychological features of joint or shared actions and attitudes and their implications for the nature of social groups and their functioning. This Handbook fully captures this distinctive nature of the field and how it subsumes the study of collective action, responsibility, reasoning, thought, intention, emotion, phenomenology, decision making, knowledge, trust, rationality, cooperation, competition, and related issues, as well as how these underpin social practices, organizations, conventions, institutions, and social ontology. Like the field, the Handbook is interdisciplinary, drawing on research in philosophy, cognitive science, linguistics, legal theory, anthropology, sociology, computer science, psychology, economics, and political science. Finally, the Handbook promotes several specific goals: 1. it provides an important resource for students and researchers interested in collective intentionality; 2. it integrates work across disciplines and areas of research as it helps to define the shape and scope of an emerging area of research; 3. it advances the study of collective intentionality.

Cycling Activism Peter Cox, 2023-07-28
 The first full length study of cycling activism through the lens of social movement theory, this book demonstrates that despite tremendous differences, bike activism can be understood as a continuous and connected activity spanning a century and a half and across continents. With examples from street protest to institutional lobbying, it emphasises cycling's current central importance to zero carbon transport futures while showing that cycling activism is also not always about the bike or the cyclist, as successive generations of activists have used cycling to articulate different visions of freedom and autonomy. Moving from a consideration of social movement theory as a means to understand cycling activism, the author presents a series of case studies of collective action organisations, networks, and campaigns in order to illustrate and elaborate a theoretical model through which diverse campaigns and approaches to change can be understood. As such, Cycling Activism will appeal to those with interests in mobilisation for social change, mobility and transport studies, and social movement theory, as well as cycling studies.

Walking as Critical Inquiry Alexandra Lasczik, Amy Cutter-Mackenzie-Knowles, David Rousell, 2023-06-22
 This book is a transdisciplinary international collection situated within a genealogy of experimental walking practices in the arts, arts based research, and emergent walking practices in education. It brings together emerging cartographies of relation amongst walking practices ranging across arts based, ecological, activist, decolonising, queer, critical, and posthuman modes of inquiry. Its particular investment is in the proliferation of artful modes of inquiry that open up speculative practices and concepts of walking as an orientation for pedagogy, inquiry, and the everyday, resisting the gaze of privilege and the relentless commodification of human and nonhuman life processes. This is important work for the burgeoning demand for creative methodologies in the social sciences, and more specifically for arts based educational research.
