Abstract

Padé approximants are rational functions whose series expansion match a given series as far as possible. These approximants are usually written under a rational form. In this paper, we will show how to write them also under two different barycentric forms, and under a partial fraction form, depending on free parameters. According to the choice of these parameters, Padé-type approximants can be obtained under a barycentric or a partial fraction form.

Keywords: Padé approximation, barycentric rational function, partial fraction.

1 Introduction

This paper describes new mathematical expressions for Padé approximants, and some of their variants. A Padé approximant is a rational function whose power series expansion in ascending powers of the variable matches a given formal power series as far as possible [1, 4]. Thus, it can be understood as a rational Hermite interpolant at zero, and it is usually written under the form of a rational fraction or as the convergent of a certain continued fraction. On the other hand, a rational interpolant can be given under the form of a rational fraction, or as the convergent of a continued fraction, or under a barycentric form.

In this paper, we will show that a Padé approximant can also be written under (at least) two different barycentric rational forms which depend on arbitrary parameters. Such an approximant will be called a barycentric Padé approximant (in short BPA). According to the choice of these free parameters, Padé-type approximants are also obtained under this form and we call them barycentric Padé-type approximant (in short BPAT). Then, we will show how to write a Padé approximant under a partial fraction form, called a partial fraction Padé approximant (in short PPTA). The case of partial Padé approximants [5], where some poles and/or zeros are imposed, could be treated similarly.
