Pain The Science Of Suffering Maps Of The Mind:

Pain Patrick D. Wall, 2000 Drawing on recent biological findings this book examines the causes and consequences of pain both mental and physical It also provides an assessment of possible cures ranging from drugs and surgery through relaxation techniques and exercise to acupuncture and herablism The Unbalanced Mind Julian P. Leff, 2001 Do defective genes give rise to defective thought The revolution in molecular genetics has given rise to the increasing optimism that advancements in biotechnology will soon uncover the causes of all disturbances of mind and behavior In this book Leff a leading psychiatrist emphasizes what is known about the psychological social and cultural factors underlying mental illness

The Life Worth Living Joel Michael Reynolds, 2022-05-17 A philosophical challenge to the ableist conflation of disability and pain More than 2 000 years ago Aristotle said let there be a law that no deformed child shall live This idea is alive and well today During the past century Supreme Court Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes Jr argued that the United States can forcibly sterilize intellectually disabled women and philosopher Peter Singer argued for the right of parents to euthanize certain cognitively disabled infants The Life Worth Living explores how and why such arguments persist by investigating the exclusion of and discrimination against disabled people across the history of Western moral philosophy Joel Michael Reynolds argues that this history demonstrates a fundamental mischaracterization of the meaning of disability thanks to the conflation of lived experiences of disability with those of pain and suffering Building on decades of activism and scholarship in the field Reynolds shows how longstanding views of disability are misguided and unjust and he lays out a vision of what an anti ableist moral future requires The Life Worth Living is the first sustained examination of disability through the lens of the history of moral philosophy and phenomenology and it demonstrates how lived experiences of disability demand a far richer account of human flourishing embodiment community and politics in philosophical inquiry and beyond Accessibility features Retail e book files for this title are screen reader friendly with images accompanied by short alt text and or extended descriptions

How to Build a Mind Igor Aleksander, 2001 Igor Aleksander heads a major British team that has applied engineering principles to the understanding of the human brain and has built several pioneering machines culminating in MAGNUS which he calls a machine with imagination When he asks it in words to produce an image of a banana that is blue with red spots the image appears on the screen in seconds The idea of such an apparently imaginative even conscious machine seems heretical and its advocates are often accused of sensationalism arrogance or philosophical ignorance Part of the problem according to Aleksander is that consciousness remains ill defined Interweaving anecdotes from his own life and research with imagined dialogues between historical figures including Descartes Locke Hume Kant Wittgenstein Francis Crick and Steven Pinker Aleksander leads readers toward an understanding of consciousness He shows not only how the latest work with artificial neural systems suggests that an artificial form of consciousness is possible but also that its design would clarify many of the puzzles surrounding the murky concept of consciousness itself How to Build a Mind also examines the presentation of self in
