The Death of the Artist William Deresiewicz, 2020-07-28 A deeply researched warning about how the digital economy threatens artists lives and work the music writing and visual art that sustain our souls and societies from an award winning essayist and critic There are two stories you hear about earning a living as an artist in the digital age One comes from Silicon Valley There s never been a better time to be an artist it goes If you ve got a laptop you ve got a recording studio If you ve got an iPhone you ve got a movie camera And if production is cheap distribution is free it s called the Internet Everyone s an artist just tap your creativity and put your stuff out there The other comes from artists themselves Sure it goes you can put your stuff out there but who s going to pay you for it Everyone is not an artist Making art takes years of dedication and that requires a means of support If things don t change a lot of art will cease to be sustainable So which account is true Since people are still making a living as artists today how are they managing to do it William Deresiewicz a leading critic of the arts and of contemporary culture set out to answer those questions Based on interviews with artists of all kinds The Death of the Artist argues that we are in the midst of an epochal transformation If artists were artisans in the Renaissance bohemians in the nineteenth century and professionals in the twentieth a new paradigm is emerging in the digital age one that is changing our fundamental ideas about the nature of art and the role of the artist in society old tradition of black cowboys in the heart of one of America's most notorious cities. In Compton, California, ten black riders on horseback cut an unusual profile; their cowboy hats tilted against the hot Los Angeles sun. They are the Compton Cowboys, their small ranch one of the very last in a formerly semirural area of the city that has been home to African American horse riders for decades. To most people, Compton is known only as the home of rap greats N.W.A. and Kendrick Lamar, hyped in the media for its seemingly intractable gang violence. But in 1988, Mayisha Akbar founded The Compton Jr. Posse to provide local youth with a safe alternative to the streets, one that connected them with the rich legacy of black cowboys in American culture. From Mayisha's youth organization came the Cowboys of today, black men and women from Compton for whom the ranch and the horses provide camaraderie, respite from violence, healing from trauma, and recovery from incarceration. The Cowboys include Randy, Mayisha's nephew, faced with the daunting task of remaking the Cowboys for a new generation; Anthony, former drug dealer and inmate, now a family man and mentor; Keiara, a single mother pursuing her dream of winning a national rodeo championship; and a tight clan of twentysomethings, Kenneth, Keenan, Charles, and Tre, for whom horses bring the freedom, protection, and status that often elude the young black men of Compton. The Compton Cowboys is a story about trauma and transformation, race and identity, compassion, and ultimately belonging. Walter Thompson Hernandez paints a unique and unexpected portrait of this city, pushing back against stereotypes to reveal an urban community in all its complexity, tragedy, and triumph. In addition to reading about the Compton Cowboys, kids will get to see them and the horses that saved their lives. This book includes an 8-page insert of color photos by the author. Whiting Grant winner and New York Times reporter Walter Thompson Hernandez.

Innovation Michael Lang, 2020-03-16 Research Paper postgraduate from the year 2020 in the subject Business economics Business Management Corporate Governance grade 1.0 Mendel University Economics language English abstract The goal of this paper is to outline the main challenges of established companies in the field of business model innovation. By conducting an empirical analysis through 30 expert interviews, insights are generated in the field of dealing with disruptive innovation, dominant mindset, and business model innovation. At first, the focus of the research is to identify the main levers for enabling disruptive innovation through the eyes of established companies. Secondly, a special focus of the interviews is to identify how an established organizational mindset affects the organizations' behavior towards disruption. Finally, the main difficulties of established organizations regarding business model innovation are outlined. According to the research goal, the main insight regarding disruptive innovation is that 25 percent of the experts point out that they are lacking a supportive environment for dealing with disruptive innovation in the correct way. In the area of dominant logic, over 50 percent are concerned how their large traditional and process-heavy firms can overcome their dominant mindset in order to stay competitive. Finally, 60 percent highlighted in the area of business model innovation that business innovation projects with experimentation without a reporting structure is key. The analysis of the expert interviews reveals that established companies are aware of disruptive trends however are not sure how to design the right environment for building the right capabilities Secondly it also highlights that the companies are aware of their dominant mindset as a key success factor for their business model innovation initiatives but do not know how to create cultural shift to overcome it Finally the research clearly demonstrates that the main challenges of established companies in business model innovation lays in the interlinkage between disruptive innovation dominant mindset and business model innovation itself which needs more attention by research in the future
