Nealon,2018-10 Despite the presence of the Flaming Lips in a commercial for a copier and Iggy Pop s music in luxury cruise advertisements Jeffrey T Nealon argues that popular music has not exactly been co opted in the American capitalist present Contemporary neoliberal capitalism has in fact found a central organizing use for the values of twentieth century popular music being authentic being your own person and being free In short not being like everybody else Through a consideration of the shift in dominant modes of power in the American twentieth and twenty first centuries from what Michel Foucault calls a dominant disciplinary mode of power to a biopolitical mode Nealon argues that the modes of musical resistance need to be completely rethought and that a commitment to musical authenticity or meaning saying no to the mainstream is no longer primarily where we might look for music to function against the grain Rather it is in the technological revolutions that allow biopolitical subjects to deploy music within an everyday set of practices MP3 listening on smartphones and iPods streaming and downloading on the internet the background music that plays nearly everywhere that one might find a kind of ambient or ubiquitous answer to the attention capitalism that has come to organize neoliberalism in the American present In short Nealon stages the final confrontation between keepin it real and sellin out      British Books in Print ,1985      A
