Curriculum Histories in Place, in Person, in Practice Petra Hendry, Molly Quinn, Roland Mitchell, Jacqueline Bach, 2023-03-10 This book situates the Curriculum Theory Project at Louisiana State University within a larger historical framework of curriculum work examining the practices which have sustained this type of curricular vitality over the lifetime of the field's existence. Divided into seven parts, the authors illuminate seven practices which have sustained the scholarship graduate programs mentorship and networking that have been critical to maintaining a web of international relationships. This exploration and coming together of intergenerational stories reveals a more complete and nuanced narrative of the development of curriculum theory over the last 60 years. Crucially, the project exemplifies the continuing resilience of curriculum theory despite ongoing neo-liberal aspirations to reframe education as a business. Reflecting upon the lived experiences and articulated memories of those who have participated in the project and analysis of documents collected over its 25-year history, it considers curriculum history 'ies writ large' through and from this lens of practice. As such, it opens up fresh insights for cultivating the vitality and vigor of curriculum theory more broadly on an international scale and with a view to future directions for the field. It will appeal to both new and experienced scholars working across education foundations urban education philosophy of education and higher education and researchers from across history sociology anthropology ethnic studies and gender studies.

Health, Food, and Social Inequality Carolyn Mahoney, 2015-02-20 Health, Food, and Social Inequality investigates how vast amounts of consumer data are used by the food industry to enable the social ranking of products, food outlets, and consumers themselves, and how this influences food consumption patterns. This book supplies a fresh, social scientific perspective on the health consequences of poor diet. Shifting the focus from individual behaviour to the food supply and the way it is developed and marketed, it discusses what is known about the shaping of food behaviours by both social theory and psychology. Exploring how knowledge of social identities and health beliefs and behaviours are used by the food industry, Health, Food, and Social Inequality outlines, for example, how commercial marketing firms supply food companies with information on where to locate snack and fast foods, whilst also advising governments on where to site health services for those consuming such foods.

disproportionately Giving a sociological underpinning to Nudge theory while simultaneously critiquing it in the context of diet and health this book explores how social class is an often overlooked factor mediating both individual dietary practice and food marketing strategies This innovative volume provides a detailed critique of marketing and food industry practices and places class at the centre of diet and health It is suitable for scholars in the social sciences public health and marketing
