

Performance Management

Performance management is a means of getting better results by managing performance within an agreed framework of goals, standards and competence requirements. It is a process to establish a shared understanding about what is to be achieved, and an approach to managing and developing people in order to achieve it.

The key to performance management is that it is forward looking and constructive. Objective-setting gives employees the security in knowing exactly what is expected of them, and this is agreed at the outset with the manager, thus identifying unrealistic expectations. The employee at the outset can indicate the resources needed.

The Process of Performance Management

(Performance Appraisal, Training and Development, Reward Management, Career Plan, Career Development)

Step 1: Identify the Requirements and Competences required to carry Business Plan.

Step 2: Draw Up A Performance Agreement. Defining the expectations of the individual or team, covering standards of performance, performance indicators and the skills and competences people need.

Step 3: (Appraisal- Before & After or Pre & Post) Draw Up A Performance and Development Plan With The Individual. These record the actions needed to improve performance, normally covering development in the current job. They are discussed with job holders and will cover, typically:

- The areas of performance the individual feels in need of development
- What the individual and manager agree is needed to enhance performance
- Development and training initiatives

Step 4: (Appraisal- Before & After or Pre & Post) Manage Performance Continually Throughout The Year. Managers can review actual performance, with more informal interim reviews at various of the year.

- High performance is reinforced by praise, recognition and increasing responsibility. Low performance results in coaching or counseling.
- Work plans are updated as necessary.
- Deal with performance problems, by identifying what they are, establish the reasons for the shortfall, take control action and provide feedback.

Step 5: Performance Review. At a defined period each year, success against the plan is reviewed, but the whole point is to assess what is going to happen in future.

Performance Appraisal

Performance appraisal is part of the system of performance management, including goal setting, performance monitoring, feedback and improvement planning.

It is the systematic evaluation of the individual with respect to his/her performance on the job and his/her potential for development.

Performance appraisal is a formal structured system of measuring and evaluating an employee's job-related behaviors and outcomes to discover how and why the employee is

The concepts under analysis were developed through intense dialogue with business managers. While maintaining academic rigour, Integrated Performance Management presents ideas that students will find relevant outside of the classroom. Postgraduate and MBA students in a range of areas including strategy, accounting, finance, operations management, marketing, leadership, and human resource management will find this book useful.

Performance Management Sorin Dumitrascu, 2017-07-09 Can you say for sure whether your team or employee goals are consistently being met. It's important to know if everyone is working to the standards expected of them. Effective performance management can help boost productivity at all levels of your organization. A systematic approach is important to increase productivity throughout an organization. It's also important to focus on achieving results that contribute to the success of a company. These are two cornerstones of effective performance management. This course begins with an explanation of the nature of performance management and the advantages it provides to organizations that use it. Then the five phases that typically comprise a performance management system will be introduced. Much of the course is an in-depth look at the first phase: planning for performance, and it also covers how to establish performance expectations. During this first phase of the performance management process, you'll establish critical success factors and translate them into key performance indicators. Then you'll develop role profiles to help match people with the right skills to appropriate work, further improving performance. Once you've completed this course, you'll have an understanding of what a performance management system involves and be able to undertake the planning needed for such a system to be effective. This planning is the basis for all the other phases of performance management. Monitoring performance is critically important. It shows you whether you're on track to achieve your goals. And if you're not, it gives you the chance to change things before it's too late. You can only monitor and measure performance when you have clear and specific targets and standards. You also need to be able to collect the right performance data and know how to analyze it, use it, and act on it. Finally, you must know how to deal effectively with underperformance, whether that's from employees who aren't performing, can't perform, or won't perform to the standard required. This course introduces a four-step process for monitoring and improving performance. It first explains how to determine and set appropriate targets and standards against which you can measure performance. It then introduces different ways to collect the relevant data and shows you how to analyze the data and decide on appropriate action to help respond to gaps in performance. Finally, the course presents a technique for dealing with underperformers in a positive and collaborative way. Managing the performance of your employees is an essential part of being a manager. And one of the most important parts of managing performance is taking a strategic, integrated, and cohesive approach to rewarding employees for the value they produce for the organization. Reward management is a process of formulating and implementing policies, strategies, and practices to reward employees fairly, consistently, and in line with their value to the organization. It's important that employees understand that there's a clear connection between how well they perform and how well they're rewarded. An effective reward system organizes and categorizes reward-related processes and activities to ensure that reward management produces value for both employees and employer. Performance appraisal is the part of reward management that involves monitoring, measuring, and assessing how well employees meet the standards and competency requirements of their jobs. Put simply, performance appraisal puts a value on an employee's contribution to the organization. The assessment of an employee's performance is communicated to the employee through the performance appraisal meeting. This is a formal discussion about how well that person has achieved the key outcomes or goals of the job over a period of time But an appraisal meeting needs to be handled well if it is going to result in a positive and productive experience for both manager and employee

Armstrong on Reinventing Performance Management Michael Armstrong, 2017-01-03 Armstrong on Reinventing Performance Management presents a holistic approach to performance management drawing on Michael Armstrong's vast research and experience Most organizations have performance management processes in one form or another but these are often based on formal annual reviews forced rankings and directly linked to pay decisions These traditional approaches are often at the expense of ongoing continuous feedback and focus on looking back at what has or has not been achieved rather than looking forward Direct links to pay decisions divert attention from people development and managers often get lost in the bureaucracy of complex forms rather than fully engaging with their people Armstrong on Reinventing Performance Management details how to build a culture of ongoing feedback and coaching and provides case studies of how this approach to building performance has been effective in organizations including Deloitte Gap Expedia and Google Filled with practical advice including how to deal with underperformers it enables organizations to remove overly bureaucratic and ineffective systems based on top down judgments and ratings and demonstrates how to get line managers support for the process focusing on actionable feedback and growth
