have been few brands that have made such a massive impact on the world stage in such a relatively short time frame as MTV. It is a household name and virtually all young people regardless of whether they have access to television have heard of it. It is a name associated with youth and music and all areas in which the two are involved. It has dominated the market space in the category of music television since its inception and looks like it will continue to do so in the foreseeable future. This book is not so much a tribute to MTV although it deserves as much but an analysis of how the MTV brand has been built. Global brands do not just arrive by accident; they are carefully and strategically built to match the needs of their target markets. They evolve with those target markets as lifestyles, wants, needs, attitudes, opinions, interests, and many other factors come and go. In addition, global brands successfully manage the differences across countries and cultures. MTV has managed to do all of these things with startling consistency, another attribute of great brands that stand the test of time. What is more intriguing is that it has done all this in one of the most turbulent times ever experienced in consumer markets, particularly in Asia, where change is endemic.

Adweek, 2000-02 Undead TV Elana Levine, Lisa Parks, 2007-11-02. Critical studies of the popular television show BUFFY THE VAMPIRE SLAYER Northern Lights, 2002 A Digital Gift to the Nation Lawrence K. Grossman, Newton N. Minow, 2001. As the United States enters the new century, technological advances have the power to transform commerce, the public sector, and how citizens interact. This volume, part of the multiyear Digital Promise project administered by The Century Foundation, examines emerging technologies including wireless telephones, electronic data transmission, and Internet communications, and how they impact educational, cultural, and other nonprofit organizations. The book features a report prepared by Lawrence K. Grossman, former president of NBC News and PBS, and Newton Minow, former chairman of the FCC and PBS, two of the leading intellectuals on public telecommunications matters. They offer specific policy recommendations for securing and protecting the public's interest in the ongoing technology revolution. Specifically, Grossman and Minow suggest creating a Digital Information Trust modeled after the Morrill Land Grant Colleges Acts of the nineteenth century. The trust fund would be financed by revenues from the federal government's sale or lease of electromagnetic spectrum and would be used to support the work of a range of educational and nonprofit groups. Other contributors include Les Brown, Fordham University; Marion R. Fremont-Smith, Harvard University; Richard Kimball, Project Vote Smart; and Mark Lloyd, Civil Rights Forum on Communications Policy.

African Media, African Children Norma Odom Pecora, Enyonam Osei-Hwere, Ulla Carlsson, 2008. African Media African Children is the title of the tenth Yearbook of the International Clearinghouse on Children, Youth, and Media. Over the years, we have focused attention on a wide range of topics, but this is the first Yearbook with a geographical focus and a vast continent at that. A focus on Africa seems both timely and important. When issues about children and media are discussed, all too often the frame of reference is the media culture of the Western world. There is an urgent need for the agenda to become open to non-Western thoughts and intercultural approaches to a much higher degree than is the case at present. The essays in this volume reflect a wide range of issues and concerns related to children's media culture in Africa. For example, several address the role of entertainment television in Addis Ababa, Ghana, South Africa, Kenya, and Zambia, and in the lives of Muslim children. Other essays introduce us to children-centered media from Ghana, South Africa, and Zimbabwe, and the innovative programs of PLAN International. In addition to entertainment media and children-centered media, media education and digital media literacy are also discussed.
