Max Cavitch, The most widely practiced and read form of verse in America elegies are poems about being left behind writes Max Cavitch American Elegy is the history of a diverse people's poetic experience of mourning and of mortality's profound challenge to creative living By telling this history in political psychological and aesthetic terms American Elegy powerfully reconnects the study of early American poetry to the broadest currents of literary and cultural criticism Cavitch begins by considering eighteenth century elegists such as Franklin Bradstreet Mather Wheatley Freneau and Annis Stockton highlighting their defiance of boundaries between public and private male and female rational and sentimental and demonstrating how closely intertwined the work of mourning and the work of nationalism were in the revolutionary era He then turns to elegy's adaptations during the market driven Jacksonian age including more obliquely elegiac poems like those of William Cullen Bryant and the popular child elegies of Emerson Lydia Sigourney and others Devoting unprecedented attention to the early African American elegy Cavitch discusses poems written by free blacks and slaves as well as white abolitionists seeing in them the development of an African American genealogical imagination In addition to a major new reading of Whitman's great elegy for Lincoln When Lilacs Last in the Dooryard Bloom'd Cavitch takes up less familiar passages from Whitman as well as Melville's and Lazarus's poems following Lincoln's death American Elegy offers critical and often poignant insights into the place of mourning in American culture Cavitch examines literary responses to historical events such as the American Revolution Native American removal African American slavery and the Civil War and illuminates the states of loss hope desire and love in American studies today Max Cavitch is assistant professor of English at the University of Pennsylvania

Red Stream Paul Tracy, 2013-03-28 Max paused and bent his head at an angle to get a better look That was wine a leak coming from one of the vats not much a dribble but definitely a leak wending its way across the slightly sloping floor of the cellar into the gutter running down the middle He walked briskly towards it then stopped catching his breath The shiny black shoes stuck out foolishly into the alley just below the blue overalls Pierre Berton a youngish man with sandy hair lay on his side with a sad expression on his face The red stream gently seeping across the cellar floor was not wine This macabre discovery in a wine cellar in south west France is the beginning for Max Christian winemaker extraordinary of a chase to uncover a huge network of wine fraud with worldwide tentacles The pursuit takes him to Provence London Italy and California with the increasing feeling that he is gradually turning from the hunter into the hunted But in that case who are the hunters Written by an insider Red Stream is an amazing thriller that perfectly takes advantage of its unusual background Highly recommended for everyone a must have for all wine lovers Catholic
