Refrigeration, Air Conditioning and Heat Pumps Fabio Polonara,2021-02-11 Refrigeration air conditioning and heat pumps RACHP have an important impact on the final energy uses of many sectors of modern society such as residential commercial industrial transport and automotive Moreover RACHP also have an important environmental impact due to the working fluids that deplete the stratospheric ozone layer which are being phased out according to the Montreal Protocol 1989 Last but not least high global working potential GWP working fluids directly and energy consumption indirectly are responsible for a non negligible quota of greenhouse gas GHG emissions in the atmosphere thus impacting climate change

Enhancement of Industrial Energy Efficiency and Sustainability Andrea Trianni,2021-09-02 Industrial energy efficiency has been recognized as a major contributor in the broader set of industrial resources to improved sustainability and circular economy Nevertheless the uptake of energy efficiency measures and practices is still quite low due to the existence of several barriers Research has broadly discussed them together with their drivers More recently many researchers have highlighted the existence of several benefits beyond mere energy savings stemming from the adoption of such measures for several stakeholders involved in the value chain of energy efficiency solutions Nevertheless a deep understanding of the relationships between the use of the energy resource and other resources in industry together with the most important factors for the uptake of such measures also in light of the implications on the industrial operations is still lacking However such understanding could further stimulate the adoption of solutions for improved industrial energy efficiency and sustainability

This study proceeds on Campbell's 2002 argument that in today's biodiversity conservation discourse, the traditional exclusionary conservation narrative co-exists with a counter narrative on sustainable use through ecotourism. Based on the perception of a global biodiversity crisis, the conservation landscape has seen the resurgence of the traditional conservation discourse which reinforces the argument against social objectives of conservation and for an exclusionary conservation approach drawing on the notion of wilderness. Local resource use practices are restricted or prohibited while ecotourism is considered the most sustainable option. However, as a proposed alternative livelihood strategy for local residents, ecotourism often fails to deliver on claims that it significantly benefits local development while it may be more conducive to furthering ecological imperatives. Based on an analysis of the management of Komodo National Park, Indonesia, and the development of communities within the Park, this study argues that ecotourism may only be a politically attractive slogan that provides conservation agencies with the political and economic justification for an exclusionary protected area.
