Rethinking Education Stephen Murgatroyd, 2011-10 This publication represents the first of a series of books that will profile some of the forward thinking work being undertaken by leading education researchers and policy experts focused on transforming the face of public education and the future of Alberta. The Co-creating a Learning Alberta book series is a partnership with leading public policy thinkers and the Alberta Teachers Association that flows from the public lecture series called Learning our Way to the Next Alberta. Since its inception in 2004, this lecture series has drawn over 5 000 participants and continues to push our thinking about the hopes and possibilities for the future of this province and is profiled at www.learningourway.ca. In these public lectures, three questions have come to dominate the conversations about the future of the Alberta: What is the Alberta that the world needs to see? What kind of Albertans do we need to become to get us there? and How will leadership in learning help us become our best selves?

Re-Reading Education Policies, 2009-01-01 This book collects studies with a critical education policy orientation and presents itself as a handbook of matters of public concern. The term critical does not refer to the adoption of a particular theoretical framework or methodology but rather it refers to a very specific ethos or way of relating to the present and the belief that the future should not be the repetition of the past. This implies a concern about what is happening in our societies today and what could or should be happening in the future. As a consequence, the contributors to the book rely on a general notion of public policy that takes on board processes, practices, and discourses at a variety of levels in diverse governmental and non-governmental contexts and considers the relation of policy to power, to politics, and to social regulation. Following the detailed introduction that aims at picturing the landscape of studies with a critical education policy orientation, the book presents readings of six policy challenges: globalization, knowledge society, lifelong learning, equality, democracy, social inclusion, accountability, control, efficiency, and teacher professionalism. It seeks to contextualise these in relation to issues of current global concern at the start of the 21st century. Despite the diversity of approaches, this collection of critical education policy studies shares a concern with what could be called the public and its education and represents a snapshot of education policy research at a particular time.

Enabling Enterprise Transformation Nagy K. Hanna, 2009-12-11 Private enterprises in advanced economies have been learning to use information and communication technology (ICT) to innovate and transform their processes, products, services, and business models, significantly improving productivity and competitiveness. Moreover, the ICT industry itself has become a major source of job creation and a contributor to economic growth and business transformation. A key question today is whether and how developing countries can learn to benefit from the ICT revolution.

and what roles the government and private sector can play Already a number of developing countries have been inspired by the example of India and China and are now seeking to jump on the outsourcing bandwagon Nevertheless with few exceptions in the developing world little attention has been paid by policymakers and practitioners to invest systematically and proactively in ICT enabled growth poverty reduction and grassroots innovation Most communities and small and medium sized enterprises in developing countries for example face multiple constraints to adopting and leveraging this general purpose technology and lack the capabilities for maximizing its potential In Enabling Enterprise Transformation Nagy Hanna draws on his rich experience of over 35 years at the World Bank and other aid agencies as a development strategist and ICT policy expert the most current research and best practices from around the world to provide practical tools for promoting economic and social transformation through ICT He assesses various initiatives to develop and diffuse ICT such as innovation funds incubators parks public private partnerships and comprehensive promotion programs He argues for the strategic options now open for developing countries to participate in ICT production to deploy ICT to transform industries and services and to leverage ICT as a new national infrastructure for improving the business environment and enhancing the competitiveness of the whole economy The challenge for leaders in developing countries is to create such social and institutional dynamics for learning about ICT use and adaptation at many levels Lessons gained so far from programs to build these social learning and innovation capabilities at the institutional and grassroots levels should be shared among developing countries and a dialogue among business leaders policymakers development agencies educational institutions and the general citizenry must be advanced
