E-Learning Elvis Pontes, Adilson Guelfi, Sergio Kofuji, 2012-03-14 E-learning enables students to pace their studies according to their needs, making learning accessible to 1. people who do not have enough free time for studying; they can program their lessons according to their available schedule; 2. those far from a school; geographical issues or the ones unable to attend classes due to some physical or medical restriction. Therefore, cultural, geographical, and physical obstructions can be removed, making it possible for students to select their path and time for the learning course. Students are then allowed to choose the main objectives they are suitable to fulfill. This book regards E-learning challenges, opening a way to understand and discuss questions related to long distance and lifelong learning, E-learning for people with special needs, and lastly, presenting a case study about the relationship between the quality of interaction and the quality of learning achieved in experiences of E-learning formation. Making School a Game Worth Playing Ryan Schaaf, Nicky Mohan, 2014-06-05 Integrate game-based learning for 21st Century skills success. Whose Knowledge Counts in Government Literacy Policies? Kenneth S. Goodman, Robert C. Calfee, Yetta M. Goodman, 2013-10-01 Accountability in the form of standardized test scores is built into many government literacy policies with severe consequences for schools and districts that fail to meet ever increasing performance levels The key question this book addresses is whose knowledge is considered in framing government literacy policies The intent is to raise awareness of the degree to which expertise is being ignored on a worldwide level and pseudo science is becoming the basis for literacy policies and laws The authors all leading researchers from the U S U K Scotland France and Germany have a wide range of views but share in common a deep concern about the lack of respect for knowledge among policy makers Each author comes to the common subject of this volume from the vantage point of his or her major interests ranging from an exposition of what should be the best knowledge utilized in an aspect of literacy education policy to how political decisions are impacting literacy policy to laying out the history of events in their own country Collectively they offer a critical analysis of the condition of literacy education past and present and suggest alternative courses of action for the future
