

READING COMPREHENSION

LEARNING GENRES FANTASY

The fantasy genre is a type of fiction. Fantasy stories are set in a world that is not real. They are full of magic, dragons, wizards, and other things that do not exist in our world. They can also have a lot of action, adventure, and mystery. Fantasy stories are often written for children, but they can also be written for adults. They are a fun way to escape from reality and imagine a world where anything is possible.

U.S. Grade 5 Learning Standards for Reading states that students should be able to understand and analyze the elements of a story.

"What makes a story a story?" asked Susan. "It has a beginning, middle, and end," said John. "It also has a conflict," said Susan. "A conflict is a problem that the characters in the story have to solve," said John. "It also has a resolution," said Susan. "A resolution is the end of the story where the conflict is solved," said John. "It also has a theme," said Susan. "A theme is a message or a lesson that the story teaches," said John.

John said, "The story and the story's conflict."

These are the elements of a story. They are the parts that make up a story.

The Wonderful Wizard of Oz

by L. Frank Baum

"What a wonderful world this is!" cried Dorothy as she stepped out of her house. "There is no one around here except the scarecrow, the tin man, and the lion."

Just then a great big wind came from the West. The house fell over on its side and Dorothy was blown away.

"Where am I?" she wondered. "How did this happen?"

She looked out of Dorothy's house and saw the fields and the great green mountains of the land of Oz. She saw the yellow brick road that led to the Emerald City. She saw the wicked witch of the West who had stolen her house.

She saw the great big wind that had blown her here. She saw the great big wind that had blown her here. She saw the great big wind that had blown her here.
