

The Scalloped Rug

A scalloped base wool is done when you design your rug. The pattern itself is drawn with the scallops and then cut. When you are cutting the scallops it is easier and you will get a nicer cut scallop if you go in two different directions while cutting. First cut half of the scallop to the right, proceeding to cut all the right sides of the scallop around the rug. Next go the left side of the scallop and cut the second half of the scallop.

It is easier to cut the scallops this way instead of trying to cut down in the valley of each scallop. The blanket stitching on a scallop rug is also a little different. Always try to get one stitch down in the scallop valley to make sure it is fully anchored.

Eight double penny scallops are so practical. They can be used under lamps, candles, as a hot pad, and under a plant.
