Update on Student Loan Repayment & Forgiveness Programs Adam S. Minsky, 2022 Student Loan Repayment Guide Colorado Guaranteed Student Loan Program, 1989 An Examination of Student Loan Interest Rate Proposals in the 113th Congress David P. Smole, 2013-07

The interest rates that borrowers pay on federal student loans made through the William D Ford Federal Direct Loan program are specified in statutory language of the Higher Education Act of 1965 as amended. Numerous proposals have been made during the 113th Congress that would affect the interest rates that borrowers pay on student loans made through the Direct Loan program. These include long term proposals to establish a new interest rate structure for all Direct Loans made during future years and short term proposals to temporarily extend the authority to make Direct Loans at the rates currently in effect. For the past two years one type of loan Direct Subsidized Loans have been made with a fixed interest rate of 3.4%. Absent congressional action Direct Subsidized Loans made on or after July 1, 2013 will be made with a fixed interest rate of 6.8%. Several of the long term proposals would amend the Direct Loan program to index student loan interest rates to market indices such as the rate on 10 year Treasury notes. Some policy options would establish a market indexed fixed interest rate structure while others would establish a market indexed variable interest rate structure. In his FY2014 budget President Obama proposed a market indexed fixed interest rate structure that would apply to Direct Loans made in future years. On May 23, 2013 the House passed H.R. 1911 which would establish a market indexed variable interest rate structure for new Direct Loans. S. 1003 would establish a new market indexed fixed interest rate structure for Direct Loans made in future years. Other bills would make short term changes to student loan interest rates and would affect only Direct Subsidized Loans. S. 953 would extend for two years the authority to make Direct Subsidized Loans with a fixed interest rate of 3.4%. S. 897 would set the borrower interest rate on new Direct Subsidized Loans made only during the upcoming federal student aid award year at the Federal Reserve discount window primary credit rate. This report describes and analyzes student loan interest rate proposals that have been made in the 113th Congress to establish new policies for setting the interest rates that borrowers will pay on loans made through the Direct Loan program. The report compares and contrasts selected loan interest rate policy options and provides information on proposed student loan interest rate structures, projections of future interest rates and estimates of future costs to the government. The report also presents estimates of borrower repayment amounts associated with the different interest rate proposals based on case simulations for three types of typical borrowers: undergraduate dependent students, undergraduate independent students, and parent borrowers. Finally, the report highlights some of the perennial tensions that often arise when student loan interest rates are debated: Should federal student loan programs provide below market or fair market interest rates to borrowers? What value is ascribed with providing borrowers predictable fixed monthly payments as opposed to payments that may vary in accordance with market conditions? To what extent should the federal government seek to subsidize loans or borrower repayment and for what subset of borrowers should subsidies be available Student Loan Law Deanne Loonin,2002 Guide to Repaying Your B.C. Student Loan British Columbia. Ministry of Advanced Education,2008 Graduate Schools with the Lowest Rates of Student Loan Repayment Delisle,2018 The Obama Administration's New 'REPAYE' Plan for Student Loan Borrowers Gregory S. Crespi,2016 In response to President Obama s 2014 directive the DOE has proposed a new student loan repayment option labeled the Repay As You Earn Plan REPAYE Plan The DOE on July 9 2015 requested comments on their proposed REPAYE Plan rules and the Plan will probably be open for enrollment in early 2016 for up to 6 million student loan borrowers who are not eligible for enrollment in the generous Pay As You Earn Plan PAYE Plan because of their pre October 1 2007 federal student loan debts I estimate that approximately 72 000 of those 6 million persons are law graduates However I also estimate that approximately 62% of those 72 000 law graduates have already enrolled in either the Income Based Repayment Plan IBR Plan or the Income Contingent Repayment Plan ICR Plan Most of those persons among the remaining group of about 27 500 PAYE Plan ineligible law graduates who have not already enrolled in a loan repayment Plan if they later do decide to enroll will enroll in the old IBR Plan rather than the new REPAYE Plan because of the REPAYE Plan s harsh spousal income inclusion rules The largest group of REPAYE Plan law graduate enrollees in 2016 will be those old IBR or ICR Plan enrollees who expect to have relatively modest spousal incomes over the coming two decades and who consequently will in many instances be able to reduce their monthly repayment obligations by switching over to the REPAYE Plan For the REPAYE Plan to be made more broadly attractive to other law graduates especially to those more recent law graduates eligible for PAYE Plan enrollment the required repayment period for law graduates would have to be reduced to 20 years and the spousal income inclusion rules eliminated Such an amendment to the REPAYE Plan rules could be made by the Department of Education under existing statutory authority and would not require additional Congressional authorization But this is unlikely because of the politically controversial lost governmental revenue implications and because of opposition from those persons within the DOE and elsewhere who regard the existing PAYE Plan s terms as too generous to high debt graduate school borrowers and who would not want to see those terms made available to a broader group of law graduate borrowers Consolidated Student Loan Interest Rates ... Hearing ... S.
