Global University Ranking Systems: Methodologies, Impact, and Repercussions Kayyali, Mustafa, 2025-10-15 Global university ranking is a powerful tool in shaping the higher education landscape and influencing student decisions. These rankings develop various methodologies that assess academics, faculty, and research to offer a comparative framework to evaluate an institution. This growing prominence, however, has sparked debate about their accuracy and equity with marginalized and diverse educational missions. Global ranking systems analyze their broad impact on universities and stakeholders and critically examine their long-term repercussions for higher education. Global University Ranking Systems: Methodologies, Impact, and Repercussions explores the intricate world of global university rankings and their profound impact. This book determines how rankings shape global perceptions, determining which universities gain international prestige and which struggle to maintain relevance. Covering topics such as higher education rankings and education, this book is an excellent resource for administrators, faculty, policymakers, researchers, academicians, and more.

Telecommunications Mark L. Goldstein, 2009-11 The U.S. ranks 15th among the 30 democratic nations of the OECD on one measure of broadband, i.e., high-speed Internet subscribership. The FCC has regulatory authority over broadband, and several federal programs fund broadband deployment. This report discusses: 1) the federal broadband deployment policy, principal federal programs, and stakeholders' views of those programs; 2) how the policies of OECD nations with higher subscribership rates compare with U.S. policy; and 3) actions the states have taken to encourage broadband deployment. To address these objectives, the auditor analyzed the broadband policies of the U.S. and other OECD nations and reviewed federal program documentation and budgetary information.

Intellectual Property in the Information Age Jeffrey C. Sun, Benjamin Baez, 2010-04-22 This monograph pays special attention to the intellectual property of copyrights and patents. It examines how legal parameters, competing interests, and technological advances take shape in economic, political, and social contexts that require colleges and universities make intellectual property central to their operations. Economic, political, and social forces are redefining knowledge as property that can be owned, and institutions of higher education as producers of knowledge are central participants in this phenomenon. Debates about intellectual property are rampant, some arguing that knowledge should not become a commodity for exchange, others that intellectual property fosters innovation in society. What is not debatable is the importance of the law for resolving disputes about intellectual property. Today, the evolving legal context associated with intellectual property and technological advancements have created competing interests and demands from individuals, institutions, and even nations. The law is often the realm in which these interests and disputes take place, with more or less satisfying results. Colleges and universities must grapple with not only complex legal issues but also the philosophical and political consequences associated with the conversion of intellectual acts into property. This is the fourth issue in the 34th volume of the Jossey-Bass series ASHE Higher Education Report. Each monograph in the series is the definitive analysis of a tough higher education problem based on thorough research of pertinent literature and institutional experiences Topics are identified by a national survey Noted practitioners and scholars are then commissioned to write the reports with experts providing critical reviews of each manuscript before publication
