Good Meal Prep Ideas For Beginners and Dummies Barbara Dawson, 2020-08-18

Meal prepping is meal prepping. It's not a recipe then portioning it out to get grab and go meals for later. If you've ever kept your leftovers from dinner to take with you for lunch the next day then you've already mini meal prepped. Generally though meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days worth of food at a time. Think of it like keeping your lunches for the week all at once instead of keeping your lunch for the morning. You can use this same technique for breakfast lunch dinner and snacks. Meal prepping doesn't result in waste and reduces the time to get outside your door whether the plan is a diet or a budget. When keeping your meal plan for the day the question is how long will you be able to eat homemade meals without having to do it each day to refresh. Meal prepping is not for everyone. It is good for people who value convenience and often more than anything else. With meal prepping you generally eat the same thing for a few days in a row so if you don't like leftovers or get bored with food meal prepping is not for you. If having nutritious food while maximizing your time and budget is more valuable to you than eating something different every day meal prepping is your ticket. I've generally not seen a meal prep for the month or maybe one other person do a whole month. Meal prepping for a whole month would be quite difficult but the result would be a much more nutritious diet. A diet stored in the refrigerator for a long time is a slow decline in quality. In addition to the way food is packed the individual nuances of your refrigerator can impact the quality of your refrigerated meal. So the length of time is acceptable depending on the texture and flavor will be subject to the eater. Always begin with the refrigerator guidelines to be the FDA and then evaluate them against your own preferences. In general I don't like to keep more than a few days worth of food but I find that by that time the food is usually still good to eat.
