Locating Latin American Women Writers Claire Lindsay, 2003 The end of the twentieth century witnessed a boom in the production publication readership and scholarship of women's writing from Latin America In fact the emergence of women writers is perhaps the most significant phenomenon of the post boom period of Latin American literary history a phenomenon that has been influenced in turn by the burgeoning development of a number of women's movements on the continent. Within this boom the short story has become an increasingly popular genre amongst women writers. This book considers the locations of four major women writers: Cristina Peri Rossi, Rosario Ferré, Alicia Angélica and Isabel Allende and their short fiction within these changing literary and social contexts. Combining close textual analysis of their fiction with a consideration of the social, historical and geographical contexts of literary production, this book is essential reading for students and scholars in Latin American studies, women's studies and comparative literature.
