On Human Rights

by Christopher Dodd

Mr. Dodd was first elected to Congress from the 2nd Congressional Dist. of Connecticut in 1974 at the age of 30.

A former member of the House Judiciary Committee and the House Science and Technology Committee, Mr. Dodd was, this year, appointed to serve on the House Rules Committee. Serving also on the House Select Committee on Assassinations, Mr. Dodd was recently chosen Majority Whip of the House.

Prior to seeking political office, Congressman Dodd served as a Peace Corps volunteer in the Dominican Republic and as an attorney in Connecticut.

He resides in Norwich with his wife, Susan Mooney Dodd.

It is a great tribute to our times that we have finally brought the issue of human rights out of the Dark Ages — that we have at last recognized that the problem of human justice is not merely an internal problem, but an international issue. The scars one suffers as the result of being denied those basic rights are in many cases far more severe than the scars of physical pain and deprivation inflicted by a repressive regime.

Two years ago, as a member of the House Judiciary Subcommittee on Immigration, Citizenship and International Law, I traveled to the Soviet Union to discuss with Soviet officials a number of issues, including the immigration of Jews and other religious and ethnic groups.

As part of that trip, I visited the Vienna Transit Center and met a man and a woman who were on their way from the Soviet Union to Israel. I made a terrible mistake at that point. I asked them, through an interpreter, "Did you leave anyone behind when you left?" The interpreter asked the woman the question and she broke into tears; she could not compose herself. I didn't know what I had said to so upset her. Finally, the interpreter was able to understand her and

"Something For Everyone"

Highlights of the 1977 A.B.A. Meeting

by Bill Crow

The American Bar Association's annual meeting convened last month in Chicago, and unquestionably fulfilled its advance promise of "Something for Everyone." From the excitement of initial registration on August 4 until the stunning conclusion of the President's Ball in the early hours of August 10, the meeting offered a broad spectrum of legal programs and special entertainment events to entice even the most cynical of legal minds. The ABA-Law Student Division, a branch of larger parent organization, was headquartered at the historic Bismarck Hotel and was host to voting delegates and student bar association leaders from more than 150 ABA-approved law schools in the United States.

Senator Mark Hatfield of Oregon, in the opening address to the Law Student Division on Saturday, August 6, decried the bureaucratic maze in Washington, D.C., and called on today's law students to put pressure on the lawmakers to simplify laws and government on all levels, and to eliminate administrative barriers which cause individual citizens to feel estranged from and neglected by the government which ostensibly exists to serve them.

In separate remarks to another gathering of law students on Sunday, August 7, CBS News Correspondent Fred Graham, himself a Yale Law graduate and a former undersecretary in the
