PROFILE

Profiles are professional summaries that are usually 2-3 sentences long and provides a quick overview of what you have to offer. You can state the number of years or specific types of experience that you have in your field that is of importance to that employer. Often it helps to write this section last so that you can cherry pick your most marketable skills and accomplishments from the rest of your resume to include here.

WORK EXPERIENCE

Position title
Company name, Location | June 2015 – Present

- Communicate your skills and achievements you've acquired through your role that shows how they have prepared you to be an amazing candidate for the position that you are applying to.
- Always carefully review the job description and use similar language and key words for your applicable skills and experiences as the first person(s) reviewing your resume may be a recruiter or HR specialists.
- Do not simply list your responsibilities, you need to show employers that you were outstanding in the way you did your job to stand out amongst others who have similar work experiences.
- Be strategic and do not list everything you've ever done. You want to include the experiences that best capture your skills that are relevant to the job you are applying for

Position title
Company name, Location | April 2009 – May 2015

- It is recommended to include 4-6 points for relevant job that you list in this section. This is enough to describe your work in sufficient detail without it becoming tiring to read.
- Including more than 7-8 points in this section makes it more difficult to read at a glance. Do everything you can to make it easier for the hiring employer who has to get through a huge stack of resumes.
- If you feel that the job is unrelated to the job that you are applying for, then you can include fewer points.
- Regardless of how many points are included, the most important thing is to always use point form in this section and not paragraphs as the text becomes way too blocky and difficult for employers to quickly scan through.
