NATO's European Allies J. Matlary, M. International Military Operations in the 21st Century Per M. Norheim-Martinsen, Tore Nyhamar, 2015-05-08 This book examines the challenges that military forces will face in multinational operations in the 21st century Expanding on Rupert Smith's The Utility of Force the volume assesses the changing parameters within which force as a political instrument is ultimately carried out By analysing nine carefully selected mission types the volume presents a comprehensive analysis of key trends and trajectories Building upon this analysis the contributors break the trends and parameters down into real and potential tasks and mission types in order to identify concrete implications for military forces in future multinational operations The context of military intervention in conflicts and crises around the world is rapidly evolving Western powers shrinking ability and desire to intervene makes it pertinent to analyse how the cost of operations can be reduced and how they can be executed more intelligently in the future New challenges to international military operations are arising and this book addresses these challenges by focusing on three key areas of change 1 An increasingly urbanised world 2 The changing nature of missions 3 The commercial availability of new technologies In answering these questions and embracing some of the insights of a growing field of future studies the volume presents an innovative perspective on future international military operations This book will be of much interest to students of international intervention military and strategic studies war and conflict studies security studies and IR in general

The Challenge of European Political Will Rachel Ellehuus, Seth G. Jones, 2022-09-02 In this follow on report to Europe's High End Military Challenges The Future of European Capabilities and Missions the CSIS Europe Russia and Eurasia Program and International Security Program examine the other side of the coin of European military effectiveness the political will of European countries to conduct military missions and operations The report identifies the endogenous and exogenous factors constraining or increasing political will and maps them onto six country case studies Four prototypes of political will emerged from the analysis global partners international activists constrained partners and minimalists The report then assesses the political will of European allies and partners to conduct fifteen types of military missions and operations worldwide from peacekeeping to large scale combat It concludes with a summary of key findings First it finds that internal and external factors such as strategic culture and alliance dependence respectively will continue to constrain European political will in many cases even after the Russian invasion of Ukraine Second European states are more likely to have the political will to engage in military missions at the lower end of the conflict spectrum such as maritime patrol missions and less likely at the higher ends of the spectrum except in cases of significant collective or national defense

The US NATO Debate Magnus Petersson, 2015-07-30 Since the Libya War in 2011 it has been widely suggested that NATO's role in US security policy has diminished because Washington gives Europe less and Asia more strategic priority a tendency that is reinforced by budget restraints and because the US is no longer interested in always leading NATO activities that mainly concern European conditions Several experts have suggested that the US expect that the European security challenges primarily should be handled by NATO's European allies in a new transatlantic burden sharing model and that the US role should principally be Article V focused This book investigates to what extent these claims are valid and what consequences they may have for European and international security

The EU, NATO and the Libya Conflict Stefano Marcuzzi, 2021-12-24 This book explores the causes and implications of the Libyan crisis since the anti Gaddafi uprisings of 2011 from the perspective of the EU and NATO It asks the question of why those organizations failed to stabilize the country despite the serious challenges posed by the protracted crisis to European and transatlantic stakes in the region This book argues that such failure originated in a twofold problem common to both organizations their prioritization of legitimacy over strategy and their path dependence the insufficient degree of adaptation to meet the different needs of the crisis Through a critical and integrated analysis of official sources and extensive interviews with EU NATO UN and national government officials and militaries as well as from NGO personnel Libyan institutions and civil society and media the volume brings the perspective of both state and non state actors to the fore It reveals how wrong assumptions and centrifugal forces within the EU and NATO hampered initiatives and how the inability to use hard power judiciously and effectively in an increasingly complex and multifaceted scenario worsened the crisis This allowed for unprecedented influence of regional and global competitors such as Egypt the United Arab Emirates UAE Turkey and Russia in the richest African country This book will be of key interest for scholars and students of Libya and North Africa NATO the European Union security and conflict studies Middle East studies migration terrorism peacebuilding and more broadly international relations
