European Integration Since the 1920s Mark Hewitson,2024-10-14 Brexit populism and Euroscepticism seem to have challenged old assumptions about European integration and raised the prospect of disintegration This book re examines why the European Union and its forerunners were created and investigates how and why they have changed It links contemporary events to historical explanation arguing that there were long term sets of conditions dating back to the 1920s which pushed European governments to cooperate economically and to try to resolve their diplomatic differences The failure of the French and German governments to create

what Aristide Briand had called a European federal union demonstrated both the precariousness of the enterprise and its connection to the domestic politics of European states After 1945 the unexpected advent of a Cold War and the military diplomatic and economic presence of the United States in Europe facilitated the gradual development of habits of cooperation and institutional integration but they also placed limits on European governments activities as did disagreements between political parties and the expectations of citizens As a consequence supranational bodies such as the European Commission have been accompanied and often overshadowed by intergovernmental institutions such as the European Council with the EU as a whole functioning in important respects as a type of confederation The volume addresses a series of large scale historical questions which are integral to an understanding of the European Union It asks how and why citizens of member states have identified with the EU how matters of security affected the development of the European Community during and after the Cold War whether economic and social convergence have taken place and with what consequences and why European institutions have come to function as they have The study is thematic focusing on the most important aspects of European integration and explaining why member states have decided to carry out or have consented to the unique experiment of the European Union

Post-Colonial Nations in Historical and Cultural Context Dmitri M. Bondarenko, 2023-05-30 Using historical and anthropological analysis in Post Colonial Nations in Historical and Cultural Context Dmitri M Bondarenko examines nation building in Tanzania Uganda and Zambia He examines the nation and state as concepts and how these are changing globally particularly in regard to the idea that the fundamental characteristic of a nation is a culturally homogeneous community This feature became a cornerstone of the concept of the nation at its formation in the West by the end of the eighteenth century but post colonial migration flows from the Global South to the Global North are increasing multi culturalism in the North In contrast liberated states of Asia and Africa have been multi cultural from earlier on as they inherited the colonial borders in which typically many peoples were united Throughout the book Bondarenko argues that this history of multi culturalism is an advantage to development in the Global South and that it is necessary to depart from the classical Western concept of the nation to simultaneously support citizen unity while preserving cultural diversity

Making a Modern Political Order James J. Sheehan, 2023-05-01 Sheehan s thoughtful book makes a convincing case that the modern political order arises out of people s shared expectations and hopes without which the nation state could not exist Every political order depends on a set of shared expectations about how the order does and should work In Making a Modern Political Order James Sheehan provides a sophisticated analysis of these expectations and shows how they are a source of both cohesion and conflict in the modern society of nation states The author divides these expectations into three groups first expectations about the definition and character of political space which in the modern era are connected to the emergence of a new kind of state second expectations about the nature of political communities that is about how people relate to one another and to their governments and finally expectations about the international system namely how states interact in a society of nation states Although Sheehan treats these three dimensions of the political order separately they are closely bound together each dependent on and reinforcing the others Ultimately he claims the modern nation state must balance all three organizing principles if it is to succeed Sheehan s project begins with an examination of people s expectations about political space community and international society in the premodern European world that came to be called the ancien r gime He then in chapters on states nations and the society of nation states proceeds to trace the development of a modern political order that slowly and unevenly replaced the ancien r gime in Europe and eventually spread throughout the world To close he offers some speculations about the horizon ahead of us beyond which lies a future order that may someday replace our own

Reframing the Ethnographic Museum Michael Rowlands,Nick Stanley,Graeme Were,2025-03-20 Since the later part of the twentieth century ethnographic museums have come under increasing scrutiny and many have reflected on and changed their presentation as they questioned collections so often made by colonial officials and explorers Now is a good time to explore whether new developments in display and cultural politics provide a viable future for ethnographic museums In particular policies for restitution by colonial era institutions create a changed landscape for ethnographic display both in the countries from which they originate and in former colonising states Reframing the Ethnographic Museum presents a wide range of cultural settings across the world where ethnographic displays have appeared in their local circumstances Non European museum strategies raise new problems but also new solutions Nationalism has been especially significant in museology in Asia and in Africa new museum objectives have emerged They share a problematic future in a digital age when the aura of artefacts is challenged by digital repositories and a public less willing to travel to visit original objects Authors in this book grapple with the new complexities facing them as curators in the contemporary world Praise for Reframing the Ethnographic Museum Ethnographic museums have been controversial and have been undergoing re invention for decades They are considered illegitimate but have renewed prominence as highly visible contact zones and theatres of cross cultural mediation This book reviews and explores the sector with insight and nuance reporting the successes and failures of key curatorial projects both within Europe and across the Global South Nicholas Thomas University of Cambridge Rethinking

History of Race in the Modern and Genomic Age Tanya Maria Golash-Boza,2023-06-01 The period from the 1920s to the present is marked by the rise of eugenics the expansion and hardened enforcement of immigration laws legal apartheid the continuance of race pseudoscience and the rise of human and civil rights discourse in response Eugenics programmes in the early 20th century focused on sterilization and evolved into unimaginable horrors with the Nazi regime in Germany Countries in Europe and across the Americas have used immigration policies to shape the racial composition of their territories Legal apartheid has been slowly dismantled in the United States and South Africa yet continues to have enduring consequences

Eugenics today persists in various permutations of race science. Leaders and activists have drawn from civil and human rights discourses to fight back against the persistence of racial inequalities and racialized discourses in the 21st century. We can look back on history and see that the Holocaust was a tragedy of historic proportions yet the tradition of scientific racism that led to the Holocaust continues. We can look back and see that the internment of the Japanese during the Second World War was a horrific injustice yet detention camps filled with Central Americans continue to proliferate in the United States and refugee camps around the world are overflowing. As this volume makes clear, racism is an ideology that is adept at changing with the times yet never dissipates.

Acceleration of History Alexios Alecou, 2016-09-30

We willingly imagine that the speed of development of events has always remained constant here on earth. This is reflected in the fact that it is generally believed that the rate of natural phenomena is the same today as it has always been in the past and will remain this way more or less in the future. It is now a fact that the speed of progression of events is not constant over time. It was ascertained that since around the beginning of the 20th century the rate has accelerated in various fields; hence the term acceleration of history came to describe this phenomenon. This acceleration continues its course today and will even intensify. Examples meeting these historical vaults in short time periods are many, either local or international, that contributed to the change of the direction of history. Under any circumstances, though, the mature conditions for change are not enough without the human interference. This phenomenon has been referred to as the acceleration of history in order to emphasize the fact that if in the past a certain lapse of time was necessary for history to unfold for the events to take place today and starting around the beginning of the 20th century this time lapse was becoming increasingly shorter. The events today therefore have intensified much more than in the past. So which are considered as the main acceleration periods in history? Which events or developments de-normalized or deeply reformed the then acceptable norms, either national or international? Which events or developments changed the hard bits of history? These are the questions that we will try to answer in this edited volume.
