Natura Per A Petits I Grans:

The Keys to Bread and Wine Abigail Agresta, 2022-07-15 How did medieval people think about the environments in which they lived In a world shaped by God how did they treat environments marked by religious difference The Keys to Bread and Wine explores the answers to these questions in Valencia in the later Middle Ages When Christians conquered the city in 1238 it was already one of the richest agricultural areas in the Mediterranean thanks to a network of irrigation canals constructed under Muslim rule Despite this constructed environment drought flooding plagues and other natural disasters continued to confront civic leaders in the later medieval period Abigail Agresta argues that the city's Christian rulers took a technocratic approach to environmental challenges in the fourteenth century but by the mid fifteenth century relied increasingly on religious ritual reflecting a dramatic transformation in the city's religious identity Using the records of Valencia's municipal council she traces the council's efforts to expand the region's infrastructure in response to natural disasters while simultaneously rendering the landscape within the city walls more visibly Christian This having been achieved Valencia's leaders began by the mid fifteenth century to privilege rogations and other ritual responses over infrastructure projects But these appeals to divine aid were less about desperation than confidence in the city's Christianity Reversing traditional narratives of technological progress The Keys to Bread and Wine shows how religious concerns shaped the governance of the environment with far reaching implications for the environmental and religious history of medieval Iberia

After the project Sotoca Garcia, Adolf, 2012-04-02 It is often argued that the future city will be that one built on the already urbanized territory This statement asks for a new approach to Urban Planning more attentive to regenerating existing urban fabrics than extending them Within this context Mass Housing Estates and their renovation become an issue of great relevance Being one of the 20th century's genuine forms of urban growth their accelerated and very explicit obsolescence demands profound reflection on strategies and interventions This book shows some descriptions thoughts and tentative designs on this particular urban form Opened to an international scope most of the presented materials and writings are referred to Barcelona and its MHE since it is an exceptional case study in this matter as it is in many other fields related to urbanism The large number and diversity of housing estates that were developed throughout the last century set the framework for the analysis of three challenges that MHE renewal will face in the future guarantee of basic living conditions urbanity provision and metropolitan integration The relevance of MHEs was the opportunity to build residential neighbourhoods with a much greater potential than traditional ones. Some specific cases have shown us how to design residential environments and others show us precisely the opposite how not to. MHE shouldn't have been located in isolated sites with an excessive insistence on a certain type of architecture. Today the centre of our metropolitan reality continues to be Barcelona; it is a key element extremely important. But let us look with a renewed attention at the metropolitan context. The baricentre of this metropolitan Barcelona is certainly not located in Ciutadella but somewhere in Collserola. It is in this change of scale it is in understanding the real city that we will find the key to redefine MHE as an integral part of a much broader and more complex system than the former periphery where they were once built. Now we have the capacity and sufficient perspective to discern what was a mistake from the positive assets we can recover from these territories.
