Beginners and Dummies Barbara Dawson, 2020-08-18 Meal prepping is making a meal or recipe then portioning it out to grab and go meals for later. If you've ever kept your leftovers from dinner to take with you for lunch then extend them you've already mini meal prepped. Generally though meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days worth of food at a time. Think of it like making your lunches for the week all at once instead of making your lunch throughout the week. You can use this same technique for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. Meal prepping doesn't necessarily waste and reduce time to eat outside unless whether the plan is a diet or a budget. When making your meal plan, ask yourself the question: will I be able to eat healthy meals without having to do it every day? Meal prepping is not for everyone. It is good for those who value convenience and more time than others. With meal prepping you generally eat the same thing for a few days in a row so if you don't like leftovers or get bored with food, meal prepping isn't for you. If having more control over what you eat and maximizing your time, your budget is more valuable to you than doing something different every day, meal prepping is a good idea. Generally, meal prepping is seen as a meal for yourself or maybe one other person, not a whole family. Meal prepping for a whole family would be quite difficult but it would be a challenge. Meal prepping is a slow process in itself. In addition to the way food is packed, the individual nuances of your refrigerator can impact the quality of your refrigerated meal. The smell of the food is not acceptable, the texture is not ideal, and the flavor is not what you want. Always begin with the refrigerator guidelines to be the best. The FDA and the National Institute of Health have your own preferences in mind. I don't like to eat more than five days worth of food, but I find that to be a good idea. Meal Prep Ideas Angela Williams, 2017-07-06 Are you looking for some creative and very practical meal prep ideas?
