Murnane,2011-09-01 As the incomes of affluent and poor families have diverged over the past three decades so too has the educational performance of their children But how exactly do the forces of rising inequality affect the educational attainment and life chances of low income children In Whither Opportunity a distinguished team of economists sociologists and experts in social and education policy examines the corrosive effects of unequal family resources disadvantaged neighborhoods insecure labor markets and worsening school conditions on K 12 education This groundbreaking book illuminates the ways rising inequality is undermining one of the most important goals of public education the ability of schools to provide children with an equal chance at academic and economic success The most ambitious study of educational inequality to date Whither Opportunity analyzes how social and economic conditions surrounding schools affect school performance and children s educational achievement The book shows that from earliest childhood parental investments in children s learning affect reading math and other attainments later in life Contributor Meredith Phillip finds that between birth and age six wealthier children will have spent as many as 1 300 more hours than poor children on child enrichment activities such as music lessons travel and summer camp Greg Duncan George Farkas and Katherine Magnuson demonstrate that a child from a poor family is two to four times as likely as a child from an affluent family to have classmates with low skills and behavior problems attributes which have a negative effect on the learning of their fellow students As a result of such disparities contributor Sean Reardon finds that the gap between rich and poor children s math and reading achievement scores is now much larger than it was fifty years ago And such income based gaps persist across the school years as Martha Bailey and Sue Dynarski document in their chapter on the growing income based gap in college completion Whither Opportunity also reveals the profound impact of environmental factors on children s educational progress and schools functioning Elizabeth Ananat Anna Gassman Pines and Christina Gibson Davis show that local job losses such as those caused by plant closings can lower the test scores of students with low socioeconomic status even students whose parents have not lost their jobs They find that community wide stress is most likely the culprit Analyzing the math achievement of elementary school children Stephen

Soft Skills in Education Jaap Scheerens, Greetje van der Werf, Hester de Boer, 2020-08-25 This book examines the global movement of putting more emphasis on students social and emotional development in education It provides some order in the unstructured multitude of desirable socio emotional educational objectives and ambitions that have resulted from this movement and builds on a careful conceptual analysis It starts out by examining the roots of the movement and discusses different emphases Next it makes use of instructional and psychological constructs and theories to arrive at meaningful categorizations of major domains and types of social emotional skills One of the key assumptions is that social and emotional attributes are malleable by means of educational interventions The book reviews available research evidence for this assumption taking into account psychological studies and meta analyses It then creates new evidence based on a new meta analysis which concentrated on the effects of educational interventions on skills associated with the conscientiousness factor of the Big5 taxonomy In the final chapter the book discusses the implications for educational policy and practice a discussion in which attention is given to political and ethical questions about the desirability of treating social and emotional attributes as educational goals

Educational Inequality and School Finance Bruce D. Baker, 2021-02-09 In Educational Inequality and School Finance Bruce D Baker offers a comprehensive examination of how US public schools receive and spend money Drawing on extensive longitudinal data and numerous studies of states and districts he provides a vivid and dismaying portrait of the stagnation of state investment in public education and the continuing challenges of achieving equity and adequacy in school funding Baker explores school finance the school and classroom resources derived from school funding and how and why those resources matter He provides a critical examination of popular assumptions that undergird the policy discourse around school funding notably that money doesn't matter and that we are spending more and getting less and shows how these misunderstandings contribute to our reluctance to increase investment in education at a time when the demands on our educational system are rising Through an introduction to the concepts of adequacy equity productivity and efficiency Baker shows how these can be used to evaluate policy reforms He argues that we know a great deal about the role and importance of money in schools the mechanisms through which money matters for student outcomes and the trade offs involved and he presents a framework for designing and financing an equitable and adequate public education system with balanced and stable sources of revenue Educational Inequality and School Finance takes an issue all too often relegated to technical experts and makes it accessible for broader public empowerment and engagement After

Rebecca Kilburn, Dana Scultz, 2009-01-27 The Los Angeles area has the most severe traffic congestion in the United States Trends in many of the underlying causal factors suggest that congestion will continue to worsen in the coming years absent significant policy intervention Excessive traffic congestion detracts from quality of life is economically wasteful and environmentally damaging and exacerbates social justice concerns Finding efficient and equitable strategies for mitigating congestion will therefore serve many social goals The authors recommend strategies for reducing congestion in Los Angeles County that could be implemented and produce significant improvements within about five years To manage peak hour auto travel raise transportation revenue improve alternative transportation options and use existing capacity more efficiently they recommend 10 primary strategies improve signal control and timing restrict curb parking on busy thoroughfares implement paired one way streets promote ride sharing telecommuting and flexible work schedules develop a high occupancy toll lane network vary curb parking rates with demand enforce the current parking cash out law promote deep discount transit passes expand bus rapid transit and bus only lanes and implement a regionally connected bicycle network In addition three recommendations may help depending on the outcome of current events evaluate arterial incident management consider cordon congestion tolls and levy local fuel taxes to raise transit revenue Given that some of the recommendations may prove controversial the authors also outline complementary strategies for building political consensus Excellence Gaps in Education Jonathan A. Plucker, Scott J. Peters, 2020-01-15 2017 Texas Association for Gifted and Talented Legacy Scholar Book Award 2017 National Association of Gifted Children Scholar Book of the Year Award In Excellence Gaps in Education Jonathan A Plucker and Scott J Peters shine a spotlight on excellence gaps the achievement gaps among subgroups of students performing at the highest levels of achievement Much of the focus of recent education reform has been on closing gaps in achievement between students from different racial ethnic or socioeconomic backgrounds by bringing all students up to minimum levels of proficiency Yet issues related to excellence gaps have been largely absent from discussions about how to improve our schools and communities Plucker and Peters argue that these significant gaps reflect the existence of a persistent talent underclass in the United States among African American Hispanic Native American and poor students resulting in an incalculable loss of potential among our fastest growing populations Drawing on the latest research and a wide range of national and international data the authors outline the scope of the problem and make the case that excellence gaps should be targeted for elimination They identify promising interventions for talent development already underway in schools and provide a detailed review of potential strategies including universal screening flexible grouping targeted programs and psychosocial interventions Excellence Gaps in Education has the potential for changing our national conversation about equity and excellence and bringing fresh attention to the needs of high potential students from underrepresented backgrounds
