Searching for Wage Growth: Policy Responses to the “New Machine Age” Mr. Andrew Berg,Mr. Edward F Buffie,Mariarosaria Comunale,Mr. Chris Papageorgiou,Luis-Felipe Zanna,2024-01-12 The current wave of technological revolution is changing the way policies work This paper examines the growth and distributional implications of three policies when robot capital a broad definition of robots Artificial Intelligence computers big data digitalization networks sensors and servos is introduced in a neoclassical growth model 1 cuts to the corporate tax rate 2 increases in education spending and 3 increases in infrastructure investment We find that incorporating robot capital into the model does make a big difference to policy outcomes the trickle down effects of corporate tax cuts on unskilled wages are attenuated and the advantages of investment in infrastructure and especially in education are bigger Based on our calibrations grounded on new empirical estimates infrastructure investment and corporate tax cuts dominate investment in education in a traditional economy However in an economy with robots the infrastructure investment dominates corporate tax cuts while investment in education tends to produce the highest welfare gains of all The specific results of course may depend on the exact modeling of the technological change but our main results remain valid and can provide more accurate welfare rankings

AI is Not Ready to Conduct Unsupervised Tax Research? David Gilbertson,2023 Can ChatGPT and AI help determine whether a foreign taxpayer is engaged in a U S trade or business The answer to this question determines how much U S tax should be paid A foreign taxpayer an investor that is not engaged in a U S trade or business may not owe U S tax on their U S source interest income If engaged in a U S trade or business their tax rate could be as high as 45% in addition to state taxes No clear method or set of factors exists to make the binary decision as to when a particular taxpayer has moved from being an investor to being engaged in a U S trade or business This paper reports the results of using ChatGPT natural language processing and machine learning to identify the salient factors which move the binary needle from being an investor to being engaged in a U S trade or business This paper is the first known use of ChatGPT natural language processing to bring a more scientific approach to the issue of whether a taxpayer is engaged in a trade or business My results indicate that without supervision ChatGPT cannot currently determine whether a taxpayer is engaged in a trade or business Professionals using ChatGPT need to be careful that they review the output of ChatGPT and understand its capabilities and limitations when using it for research The supervision required to use ChatGPT will likely decrease and its capabilities increase with new versions and as institutions enhance its capabilities through further development
