Schraw, Matthew T. McCrudden, Joseph P. Magliano, 2011-08-01 Why do people from similar backgrounds who read the same text construct different meanings? Is there a question behind every reading goal such that reading is an interactive process of asking and answering of questions? Do people who believe that knowledge is dynamic construct meaning differently than those who believe that knowledge is certain? This volume addresses questions such as these and presents cutting edge research and theory that explores how readers determine text relevance, i.e. the different values they assign to information as they read, how relevance affects understanding and the implications of these studies for theories of text comprehension. This volume documents in a compelling manner the ongoing international effort to understand how text relevance affects reading and comprehension. Contributing authors represent major academic institutions on three continents and nine countries, demonstrating the multinational interest in text relevance. Why is there so much interest in text relevance? Learners are inundated with unprecedented amounts of information and increased research regarding how readers process non traditional texts, e.g. documents on the web and multiple documents, for example, underscores the importance of understanding how readers determine the relevance of text information for personal, academic or professional goals, which can enable educators to design learning situations that help learners get the most out of reading

The Education of d/Deaf and Hard of Hearing Children Peter V. Paul, 2020-02-12 A significant number of d/Deaf and hard of hearing d/Dhh children and adolescents experience challenges in acquiring a functional level of English language and literacy skills in the United States and elsewhere To provide an understanding of this issue this book explores the theoretical underpinnings and synthesizes major research findings It also covers critical controversial areas such as the use of assistive hearing devices language and literacy assessments and inclusion Although the targeted population is children and adolescents who are d/Dhh contributors found it necessary to apply our understanding of the development of English in other populations of struggling readers and writers such as children with language or literacy disabilities and those for whom English is not the home language Collectively this information should assist scholars in conducting further research and enable educators to develop general instructional guidelines and strategies to improve the language and literacy levels of d/Dhh students It is clear that there is not a one size fits all concept but rather research and instruction should be differentiated to meet the needs of d/Dhh students It is our hope that this book stimulates further theorizing and research and most importantly offers evidence and reason based practices for improving language and literacy abilities of d/Dhh students
