Retail is failing left and right and anybody that isn't a chain retailer has twice as much of a challenge ahead of them in terms of attracting and keeping business. Especially since the retail slump isn't entirely about the economy it's also about the internet. Retailers have got to work harder than ever to compete with the in-home shopping experience. Dealing with Difficult Customers Noah Fleming, Shawn Veltman, 2017-11-20 Ignore a valid complaint and you could be the next viral sensation for all the wrong reasons. But give in to every demand and you may be consumed with the often petty complaints of your worst customers and wind up pandering to them with freebies, discounts, and special attention. That will cost you time and money and perhaps worse do little or nothing to solve the root problem. Dealing with Difficult Customers will show you how to stop using gimmicks and trick promotions to encourage repeat business and the alternatives that will keep your customers salivating for more. How Hungry Hippos and Problem Children are sapping your employees' time and energy and what to do about them. The behaviors that turn great customers into dissatisfied critics and how to change them.

Customer Service in Academic Libraries Stephen Mossop, 2015-10-06 The term customer service is not new to the academic library community. Academic libraries exist to serve the needs of their community and hence customer service is essential. However, the term can be applied in a variety of ways, from a thin veneer of politeness to an all-encompassing ethic focussing organisational and individual attention on understanding and meeting the needs of the customer. For customers, the library's Front Line team is the human face of the library. How well they do their job can have a massive impact on the quality of the learning experience for many students and can directly impact upon their success. The importance of their role and the quality of the services they offer should not be underestimated, but in an increasingly digital world and with potentially several thousand individuals visiting every day, whether in person or online, each with their own agendas and requirements, how can the library's Front Line team deliver the personal service that each of these individuals need? Customer Service in Academic Libraries contributes to what academic libraries as a community do really well: the sharing of best practice. It brings together in one place examples of how Front Line teams from libraries across a wide geographical area (Hong Kong, Australia, Turkey, and the United Kingdom) work to get it right for their customers. Between them, they cover a range of institutions, including research-intensive, mixed HE/FE, private establishments, and shared campuses. All have their own tales to tell, their own emphases, their own ways of doing things, and all bring their own examples of best practice, which it is hoped readers will find useful in their own context. Discusses customer service in a library setting. Translates management theory into useful practice information. Examines building relationships, meeting customer needs, and marketing and communication. Provides examples of practical experience grounded in recent transferable experience. Delighting Your Customers Susan Nash, Derek Nash, 2001 It takes ten times as much investment to obtain business from a new customer as it does to generate more revenue from existing customers. This practical guide advises companies and organizations on how to implement a customer service strategy that should keep customers coming back. It presents case studies, research findings, quizzes, and
