

Today In History

February 5th.

Did you know that before the Late 1800s there was no agreed upon time? This meant the length of an hour or when a day began and when it ended varied in different towns and in different countries. This difference in time from town to town didn't really matter when people were mostly farmers and traveled by horse. But when the industrial revolution began and goods were being transported by train, having a standard measure of time became much more important. For example, if a farmer was moving his hay by train from one town to sell in another and he thought it was 9:30 am, but the train conductor thought it was 10:30 am the farmer could miss getting his hay on the train, and being able to sell it in the other town.

To solve this problem in October of 1884, Chester Arthur, the President of the United States, held a conference in Washington D.C. that would set a standard time for the entire world. It was decided at the conference that a town in England called Greenwich would be the basis of time for the world and all other countries would base their time zones off of how far they were from Greenwich. There was still one challenge to standardizing time, and that was communicating the time with the world. For this, the invention of the radio was a great help. On this day in 1924 the Greenwich time signal was broadcast on the radio for the first time. This was a series of tones at the beginning of the hour that let everyone listening to the radio set their clocks to the same time.

reading across the curriculum connecting subjects through text and the significance of writing as a tool for learning and expression. Additionally, we examine the role of grammar and usage in mastering the mechanics of language and the importance of fostering collaboration and communication in the classroom. Our exploration continues with emergent literacy and early literacy development, recognizing the critical role these stages play in laying the foundation for future literacy success. We delve into strategies for nurturing print awareness and book appreciation, developing phonemic awareness and phonics skills, and fostering oral language and storytelling. Creating a print-rich environment where students are surrounded by literacy materials is also essential, and we provide practical tips for achieving this. As we delve deeper into the realm of literacy education, we uncover the secrets of reading comprehension, empowering students to actively engage with text, make inferences, draw conclusions, and analyze text structures and literary devices. We also explore higher-order thinking skills, challenging students to think critically and solve problems through reading. If you like this book, write a review.

Special Education in Today's Diverse Classrooms

Shantel M. Farnan, Ruby L. Owiny, 2025-09-02. Special Education in Today's Diverse Classrooms: Meeting the Needs of Students with Exceptionalities is an introductory level textbook designed for all pre-service teachers to learn about meeting the needs of students with exceptionalities in inclusive environments. Along with descriptions of each IDEA disability category, the book presents high-leverage practices, HLPs, and evidence-based strategies that are practical and applicable to any instructional environment. Through the lens of HLPs, this text emphasizes universal design for learning (UDL), tiered supports, culturally inclusive pedagogies, and practices (CIPP) and evidence-based practices (EBPs). This textbook bridges the gap between research knowledge about disabilities and a practical approach to educating students, offering a comprehensive framework for educators navigating the diverse needs of students with exceptionalities. By placing a strong emphasis on CIPP and EBPs as they relate to HLPs, it equips readers with tools to create meaningful and equitable learning experiences. The unique structure, enriched by authentic vignettes and aligned with professional standards, ensures the practical application of frameworks such as UDL and multi-tiered systems of support. Additionally, the book underscores the importance of family engagement, making it a vital resource for fostering collaboration in education. The content aligns with the Council for Exceptional Children (CEC) standards, ensuring its relevance and utility for professional educator preparation. Through its innovative approach, this text inspires educators to not only meet students' needs but also celebrate their individuality, preparing them to succeed in dynamic inclusive school and classroom environments.
