

How to manage your mental health as a PR pro in 2024

Don't bring work home

As difficult as this may be, it is essential for your mental well-being to keep your work life and home life completely separate. PR is a stressful job, especially in times of crisis, so keep your home a stress-free zone.

Stop doomscrolling

In PR, keeping up with the news is imperative; but not all news is good news. Scrolling can lead you down a dark and gloomy hole, so make sure you switch off your social media and news channels when things get too heavy.

Limit your social media

Getting sucked in on social media platforms is super easy, but it isn't great for your mental health. So, switch off your push notifications and set time limits on your social media apps.

Create a feel-good playlist

Music has the ability to release oxytocin and help reduce stress. Create a playlist on your phone that helps to keep your spirits up when you are feeling overwhelmed.

Have good sleep habits

This might be the most difficult to achieve, but try to create good sleep habits that provide a full and peaceful night's sleep. A small change like leaving your phone in another room can do wonders for your sleep.
