Helaine Selin, 2013-11-11 The Encyclopaedia fills a gap in both the history of science and in cultural studies Reference works on other cultures tend either to omit science completely or pay little attention to it and those on the history of science almost always start with the Greeks with perhaps a mention of the Islamic world as a translator of Greek scientific works The purpose of the Encyclopaedia is to bring together knowledge of many disparate fields in one place and to legitimize the study of other cultures science Our aim is not to claim the superiority of other cultures but to engage in a mutual exchange of ideas The Western academic divisions of science technology and medicine have been united in the Encyclopaedia because in ancient cultures these disciplines were connected This work contributes to redressing the balance in the number of reference works devoted to the study of Western science and encourages awareness of cultural diversity The Encyclopaedia is the first compilation of this sort and it is testimony both to the earlier Eurocentric view of academia as well as to the widened vision of today There is nothing that crosses disciplinary and geographic boundaries dealing with both scientific and philosophical issues to the extent that this work does xi PERSONAL NOTE FROM THE EDITOR Many years ago I taught African history at a secondary school in Central Africa Medieval Islamic Civilization: A-K, index Josef W. Rethinking World History Marshall G. S. Hodgson, 1993-05-28 Is the history of the modern world the history of Europe writ large Or is it possible to situate the history of modernity as a world historical process apart from its origins in Western Europe In this posthumous collection of essays Marshall G S Hodgson challenges adherents of both Eurocentrism and multiculturalism to rethink the place of Europe in world history He argues that the line that connects Ancient Greeks to the Renaissance to modern times is an optical illusion and that a global and Asia centred history can better locate the European experience in the shared histories of humanity Hodgson then shifts the historical focus and in a parallel move seeks to locate the history of Islamic civilisation in a world historical framework In so doing he concludes that there is but one history global history and that all partial or privileged accounts must necessarily be resituated in a world historical context The book also includes an introduction by the editor Edmund Burke contextualising Hodgson's work in world history and Islamic history
