This is the story of Martyn Ware The Human League and Heaven 17 were among some of the most pioneering bands of the 1980s with Ware having played an integral role in each of their numerous successes A young lad from the heart of post war Sheffield Ware formed The Human League a few years out of school in his early twenties Described by David Bowie as the future of music it wasn't long before the band became known for their innovative and infectiously catchy singles such as Being Boiled touring with the likes of Siouxsie and the Banshees and Iggy Pop before Ware's departure Heaven 17 followed suit with their soon to be classic albums Penthouse from his austere upbringing in various council houses and close teenage friendship with former bandmate Phil Oakey to the white hot experimentation in the Synth Britannia era and his production career which allowed him to work with some of the world's greatest singers including Tina Turner But it's not just his life inside the industry which is compelling a proud socialist Martyn writes poignantly about politics how it can be a soulful personal moral duty and its role in his music creation and Britain today With charming meditations on culture humour travel and sport Martyn also shares his love of 60s films explains why Venice is the most beautiful city in the world and reveals how Sheffield Wednesday has forever been his first and eternal passion A huge page turner and always warmly told Electronically Yours sees Martyn talk candidly for the very first time about his extraordinary journey Discover amusing anecdotes raw confessions and moving reflections of a life well and truly lived at the height of the music industry Play, Creativity and Digital Cultures Rebekah Willett, Muriel Robinson, Jackie Marsh, 2012-08-21 Recent work on children's digital cultures has identified a range of literacies emerging through children's engagement with new media technologies This edited collection focuses on children's digital cultures specifically examining the role of play and creativity in learning with these new technologies. The chapters in this book were contributed by an international range of respected researchers who seek to extend our understandings of children's interactions with new media both within and outside of school. They address and provide evidence for continuing debates around the following questions: What notions of creativity are useful in our fields? How does an understanding of play inform analysis of children's engagement with digital cultures? How might school practice take account of out of school learning in relation to digital cultures? How can we understand children's engagements with digital technologies in commercialized spaces? Offering current research, theoretical debate and empirical studies, this intriguing text will challenge the thinking of scholars and teachers alike as it explores the evolving nature of play within the media landscape of the twenty-first century.

Managing Organisational Success in the Arts David

Stevenson, 2018-10-10. The creative and cultural industries are a dynamic and rapidly expanding field of enterprise. Yet all too often the dominant narrative about arts organisations is one of crisis, collapse and closure. This edited collection seeks to challenge that narrative through pursuing a focus on organisational success in the management of creative and cultural organisations. This book offers a robust and in-depth analysis of nine international case studies exploring how different organisations have achieved their objectives through effectively managing their resources. Spanning a broad cross-section of the cultural sector including Theatres, Multi-Arts Venues, Performing Arts Companies, Museums and Galleries and Festivals and Events, these cases highlight the importance of examining an individual organisation's success in relation to its environmental context, revealing not only how arts organisations work in practice but also providing inspiration and encouragement for those wishing to emulate such success. With an explicit focus on examining theory in practice, this unique collection will be of great interest to students, academics and practitioners alike. While traditional approaches have often been overly theoretical, this pragmatic approach will help students to gain a richer understanding of how to manage cultural and creative organisations more effectively.

Beyond the Score Nicholas Cook, 2013. In Beyond the Score: Music as Performance, author Nicholas Cook supplants the traditional musicological notion of music as writing, asserting instead that it is as performance that music is loved, understood and consumed. This book reconceives music as an activity through which meaning is generated in real time as Cook rethinks familiar assumptions and develops new approaches. Focusing primarily but not exclusively on the Western art tradition, Cook explores perspectives that range from close listening to computational analysis, from ethnography to the study of recordings and from the social relations constructed through performance to the performing and listening body. In doing so, he reveals not only that the notion of music as text has hampered academic understanding of music but also that it has inhibited performance practices, placing them in a textualist straightjacket. Beyond the Score has a strong historical emphasis, touching on broad developments in twentieth-century performance style and setting them into their larger cultural context. Cook also investigates the relationship between recordings and performance.

arguing that we do not experience recordings as mere reproductions of a performance but as performances in their own right. Beyond the Score is a comprehensive exploration of new approaches and methods for the study of music as performance and will be an invaluable addition to the libraries of music scholars including musicologists, music theorists, and music cognition scholars everywhere.
