Beginners and Dummies Barbara Dawson, 2020-08-18 Meal prepping is making a meal or recipe then portioning it out to grab and go meals for later. If you've ever kept your leftovers from dinner to take with you for lunch then you've already mini meal prepped. Generally though meal prepping refers to preparing 3-7 days worth of food at a time. Think of it like making your lunches for the week all at once instead of making your lunch every morning. You can use this same technique for breakfast, lunch, dinner, and snacks. Meal prepping doesn't necessarily waste and reduce time to eat outside unless you plan ahead or a budget. When making your meal plan, ask yourself the question: "How long will I be able to eat these meals without having to do them each day?" Meal prepping is not for everyone. It is good for those who value convenience and more time than others. With meal prepping you generally eat the same thing for a few days in a row so if you don't like leftovers or get bored with food, meal prepping isn't for you. If having more control over what you eat and maximizing your time, your budget is more valuable to you than doing something different every day, meal prepping is a good option. Generally, meal prepping is seen as a meal for yourself or maybe one other person, not a whole family. Meal prepping for a whole family would be quite difficult but if you have a lot of time and would rather eat a meal than not eat, it is stored in the refrigerator for a slow day in and out. In addition to the way food is packed, the individual nuances of your refrigerator can impact the quality of your refrigerated meal. Since the food is acceptable, having a good texture and flavor will be a big thing for the eater. Always begin with the refrigerator guidelines to be the FDA and then evaluate them against your own preferences. In general, I don't like to eat more than five days worth of food, but I find that by that fifth day the food is usually still good to eat. Meal Prep Ideas Angela Williams, 2017-07-06 Are you looking for some creative and very practical meal prep ideas?
