Multiple sclerosis (MS) is a chronic autoimmune disease of the central nervous system (CNS) that causes inflammation and damage to the myelin sheath that covers the brain and spinal cord. The disease is characterized by a relapsing and remitting course, with periods of active disease (relapses) followed by periods of relative stability (remissions). The exact cause of MS is unknown, but it is thought to be an autoimmune disease in which the immune system attacks the myelin sheath. MS can cause a wide range of symptoms, including vision problems, muscle weakness, numbness, and cognitive impairment. There is no cure for MS, but there are treatments available to manage symptoms and slow the progression of the disease.
