Abstract: The purpose of this study was to determine the effect of a 12-week training program on the physical fitness of sedentary middle-aged men. The subjects were 15 men, aged 40-50 years, who were sedentary and had no history of cardiovascular disease. They were divided into two groups: a control group and an exercise group. The exercise group performed a 12-week training program consisting of aerobic and resistance training. The control group did not exercise. Physical fitness was measured at baseline and at the end of the 12-week program. The results showed that the exercise group had significant improvements in cardiovascular fitness, muscle strength, and body composition compared to the control group. The control group showed no significant changes. The findings suggest that a 12-week training program can improve physical fitness in sedentary middle-aged men.
