Perfect Order Recognizing Complexity In Bali Princeton Studies In Complexity:

Perfect Order J. Stephen Lansing, 2012-09-16 Along rivers in Bali small groups of farmers meet regularly in water temples to manage their irrigation systems They have done so for a thousand years Over the centuries water temple networks have expanded to manage the ecology of rice terraces at the scale of whole watersheds Although each group focuses on its own problems a global solution nonetheless emerges that optimizes irrigation flows for everyone Did someone have to design Bali's water temple networks or could they have emerged from a self organizing process Perfect Order a groundbreaking work at the nexus of conservation complexity theory and anthropology describes a series of fieldwork projects triggered by this question ranging from the archaeology of the water temples to their ecological functions and their place in Balinese cosmology Stephen Lansing shows that the temple networks are fragile vulnerable to the cross currents produced by competition among male descent groups But the feminine rites of water temples mirror the farmers awareness that when they act in unison small miracles of order occur regularly as the jewel like perfection of the rice terraces produces general prosperity Much of this is barely visible from within the horizons of Western social theory The fruit of a decade of multidisciplinary research this absorbing book shows that even as researchers probe the foundations of cooperation in the water temple networks the very existence of the traditional farming techniques they represent is threatened by large scale development projects

Philosophy of Complex Systems, 2011-05-23 The domain of nonlinear dynamical systems and its mathematical underpinnings has been developing exponentially for a century the last 35 years seeing an outpouring of new ideas and applications and a concomitant confluence with ideas of complex systems and their applications from irreversible thermodynamics A few examples are in meteorology ecological dynamics and social and economic dynamics These new ideas have profound implications for our understanding and practice in domains involving complexity predictability and determinism equilibrium control planning individuality responsibility and so on Our intention is to draw together in this volume we believe for the first time a comprehensive picture of the manifold philosophically interesting impacts of recent developments in understanding nonlinear systems and the unique aspects of their complexity The book will focus specifically on the philosophical concepts principles judgments and problems distinctly raised by work in the domain of complex nonlinear dynamical systems especially in recent years Comprehensive coverage of all main theories in the philosophy of Complex Systems Clearly written expositions of fundamental ideas and concepts Definitive discussions by leading researchers in the field Summaries of leading edge research in related fields are also included

Adams, Kathleen Gillogly, 2011-07-18 This lively survey of the peoples cultures and societies of Southeast Asia introduces a region of tremendous geographic linguistic historical and religious diversity Encompassing both mainland and island countries these engaging essays describe personhood and identity family and household organization nation states religion popular culture and the arts the legacies of war and recovery globalization and the environment Throughout the focus is on the daily lives and experiences of ordinary people Most of the essays are original to this volume while a few are widely taught classics All were chosen for their timeliness and interest and are ideally suited for the classroom Technology in Southeast Asian History Suzanne Moon, 2023-07-25 Explores the role of technology in the larger political and economic fabric of Southeast Asia In Technology in Southeast Asian History Suzanne Moon explores the profound entanglement of technology with Southeast Asian politics social life economics and culture over its long history Moon offers a unique framework for understanding the place of technology in this region and its pivotal role in the emergence of the modern technological world Synthesizing scholarship from the fields of history archaeology and anthropology Moon examines and links technological stories from prehistory to the mid twentieth century She uses analytics in the history of technology such as circulation coproduction and assemblage to highlight the processes and evolving patterns of technological dynamism that characterize the region Drawing on research focused on specific technologies including temple construction rice agriculture weaving and shipbuilding Moon investigates the interconnectedness of these technologies within the larger political and economic fabric of Southeast Asian history In contrast with portrayals of Southeast Asia as technologically deficient Moon demonstrates the richness of this region's technological cultures. She rejects polarizing binaries such as traditional and modern or indigenous and foreign instead underscoring Southeast Asia's role as a dynamic cocreator of the modern technological world. Technology has contributed to the creation and disruption of social and political orders, shaped engagements across barriers of distance, culture, and language, and produced and reproduced diverse cultures in this region. This narrative of technological change offers students, scholars, and readers critical new perspectives on both technological history and Southeast Asian history.

Redefining Diversity and Dynamics of Natural Resources Management in Asia, Volume 4 Ganesh Shivakoti, Rudi Febriamansyah, Yonariza Yonariza, Raza

Ullah, 2016-10-11. Redefining Diversity and Dynamics of Natural Resources Management in Southeast Asia Volumes 1-4 brings together scientific research and policy issues across various topographical areas in Asia to provide a comprehensive overview of the issues facing the region. The Reciprocal Relationship between Governance of Natural Resources and Socio-Ecological Systems Dynamics in West Sumatra Indonesia Volume 4 covers a diverse range of issues related to natural resources and its management in West Sumatra, Indonesia. The chapters cover issues with livelihood, dependence, rights, and access to natural resources; natural resources management practices; socio-ecological systems and governance. Shared experiences and lessons learned from the case studies examined serve as a basis for policy makers and environmental practitioners to recognize the potential of West Sumatra's natural resources for ecological, social, and economic development, food security, poverty alleviation, and natural resource sustainability. Features contributions from mostly local authors. Explores an area experiencing considerable environmental challenges, including impacts on biodiversity and local economies. Includes chapters on forests and illegal logging, land resources, water resources, protected lands, and biodiversity. Examines case studies as a basis for policy makers and environmental practitioners to recognize the potential of West Sumatra's natural resources for ecological, social, and economic development, food security, poverty alleviation, and natural resource sustainability.

Critical Transitions in Nature and Society Marten Scheffer, 2009. Offers an introduction to critical transitions in complex systems, the radical changes that happen at tipping points when thresholds are passed. This title describes the dynamical systems theory behind critical transitions, covering catastrophe theory, bifurcations, and chaos. BOOK PUBLISHER WEBSITE. Anthropologica, 2009. Includes reports of meetings of the institute. Ritual and World Change in a Balinese Princedom Lene Pedersen, 2006. Ritual and World Change in a Balinese Princedom is an ethnography of a contemporary Balinese princedom as it engages with globally influenced circumstances. A ritual of ancestral deification serves as a vehicle for talking about the Balinese negara or state power, subject formation and local approaches to the changing nation state. The stage is set in chapter one with a narrative of the large scale ritual performed by a minor noble house in the highlands of eastern Bali presented as it unfolds in counterpoint with the national political upheaval surrounding President Suharto's fall from power in 1998. Through the lens of the ritual we observe the deliberate reconstitution of ancient forms of caste hierarchy from where we go on to look more closely at the ritual's political dimensions and at how and why the various participants became involved. Two discourses join in a surprising way as questions posed about modern politics and the broader meaning of the ritual lead back to issues debated at the level of the nature of the Balinese state. In the modern era where the princedom lacks obvious forms of power to coerce the question that rises to the fore is why? Why do the subjects still follow and work for the princes? This question recurs as subsequent chapters investigate what the ritual reveals about the dynamics of the princedom, why it was significant and how it relates to other aspects of Balinese culture, society, history and politics. Ritual and World Change examines local approaches to being princes and princely subjects but also to being subjects of and agents in the nation state in times of turmoil. This book is part of the Ritual Studies Monograph Series edited by Pamela J. Stewart and Andrew Strathern, Department of Anthropology, University of Pittsburgh. An absorbing story about a small kingdom in the mountains of Bali in the process of recreating itself, exploring the contrast between the state as a material reality and as an imagined order created through performance. J. Stephen Lansing, Professor of Anthropology, University of Arizona and Santa Fe Institute. A remarkable portrait of a Balinese Princedom deftly linking political and ritual lives at the local level with influences from the nation state in an era of globalization. The maligya ritual becomes a complex site where readers can negotiate the terrain between scholarly and indigenous claims concerning ritual performance, politics and the fluctuating face(s) of kingship. Kaja McGowan, Associate Professor and Director of Graduate Studies, Department of the History of Art and Archaeology, Cornell University. Pederson has produced a compelling account. A key contribution to the regional literature, this book is written well enough to appeal more widely to those interested in ritual and in the intersection of religion and politics. CHOICE Magazine. As well as contributing to the general theory of ritual, Pederson's book is of additional value in that she situates Balinese royal ritual in its Southeast Asian and Austronesian context, contributing to a growing body of work concerned with the deconstruction of Bali as a unique and isolated cultural enclave. Asia Pacific Journal of Anthropology. This lively and highly readable work, free of turgid theoretical jargon, will be very useful to students and teachers. This is a very good, engaging and humane book which will be widely read and inform debate for some time to come. It is beautifully produced, elegantly written and includes many excellent photographs. Journal of the Royal Anthropological Institute. This is one of the best books on ritual in Bali ever published. It is a well documented and well written study with a clear and well organised analysis. Lene Pederson has written a beautiful and accessible book that deserves a wide readership.

especially among those with an interest in how kingship and ritual manifest themselves in modern contexts
