

Performance Assessment Task
High School Grade 2
This task challenges a student to understand and apply the concept of measurement. Students must measure an object using two different units and compare these results. Aspects of units and other objects the student may use to measure the object are taken into account. For example, the student may use ribbon to measure the length of a piece of string and compare the length of the string to the length of the ribbon.
Measurement and Data Measuring length 2.MD.A. Measure the length of an object using two different units of different lengths for the two measurements. Describe how the two measurements relate to the size of the unit chosen.
Common Core State Standards Math – Mathematics of Mathematical Practices MP.2 Reason abstractly and quantitatively Mathematically proficient students make sense of quantities and their relationships in problem situations. They bring two complementary abilities to bear on problems involving quantitative relationships: the ability to decontextualize—to abstract a given situation and represent it symbolically, and manipulable, the representing symbolically as if they have a file of their own, without necessarily connecting to their experience—and the ability to contextualize, to power an abstract situation the mathematical process to be used to problem solve the relationship that the symbols represent. Quantitatively, measuring means taking a measure of something, a measure of something of the problem of being measured. The unit is measured, according to the meaning of quantity, and the unit is compared to the unit, and measuring and finding using different proportions of operations and units.
MP.4 Model with mathematics. Mathematically proficient students can apply the mathematics they know to solve problems arising in everyday life, society, and the workplace. In early grades, this might be as simple as recognizing subtraction as related to addition, or counting on to solve a subtraction problem. As students progress, it might involve representing a problem by an equation, or drawing a diagram to represent a situation. By high school, a student might use geometry to solve a design problem or use a function to describe how one quantity of interest depends on another. When mathematically proficient students who can apply what they know are comfortable making conjectures and approximations to complete a mathematical situation, modeling that situation may lead to a solution. They are able to identify important elements in a problem situation and use their relationships among such tools as diagrams, two-way tables, graphs, equations and formulas. They can analyze their mathematical relationships to their mathematics. They routinely interpret their mathematical results in the context of the situation and reflect on whether the results make sense, possibly improving the model if it has not served its purpose.
Assessment Results This task was designed by the Mathematics Assessment Resource Service and addressed aspects of a national, national math assessment. The assessment purposes, questions may be attributed to the results of the national assessment, including the total score provided for the task. The number of items points, and the percent of students that scored at or below the task. Mathematics, including the scoring rubric, answer keys, and the results of student mathematics and mathematics on the task, are included in the task packet.

Reimagining Nigeria's Educational System Joseph A. Balogun,2023-09-20 This book assesses the challenges within the Nigerian educational system and provides a concrete plan to revitalize the low performing system by strengthening high stakes testing at all levels In Nigeria many citizens believe that the solution to the country s low performance in education is to eliminate high stakes standardized testing High stakes testing refers to applying standardized student achievement tests as a primary mechanism to evaluate students teachers and their school s performance This book argues that the poor quality of education and low ranking of Nigeria s educational system is not related to the negative consequences of high stakes testing but rather is due to many intrinsic factors By conducting a comparative analysis of six high performing education systems worldwide the book offers a comparative summative evaluation of the educational system and offers recommendations This book will be of interest to policymakers and scholars in the fields of African education higher education quality and global studies African studies management and administration leadership and professional development studies Joseph Abiodun Balogun is former Dean and retired Distinguished University Professor at the College of Health Sciences Chicago State University USA Visiting Professor Program Consultant at the Centre of Excellence in Reproductive Health Innovation University of Benin Nigeria and President CEO Joseph Rehabilitation Center Tinley Park Illinois USA An Index of U.S. Voluntary Engineering Standards, Supplement 2 William J.
