want to wake up from BB's world is hotter than stage lights and this must read book is your backstage pass I love this series Kayti McGee author of Want The Girl by the River Amicus, 2014-11-03 An artist travels to a remote but beloved spring to sketch the river and its verdant surrounds when he meets a lovely creature in sparkling pastel gauze wearing a crown of flowers who unexpectedly dances for him Is it the heat or her allure He has to have her Together they share something magical something that transcends the marks on his sketchpad an incendiary lust that binds them forever EXCERPT I knew it The sharp high pitched female voice startled me into an auto responsive jerk and defensive posture as I went rigid in the chair What the hell Sorry I didn't mean to frighten you My head had already swung around to the source of the voice and it surprised me that she stood so close how could I have not heard her approach For a moment I could find nothing to say She was tiny fragile barefooted and was wearing ah I don't even know how to describe the layers of gauze like material that clung to her shoulders and hung down just below her knees A shimmering wavering image of pastel blues and greens and sparkles and a damned Princess crown of flowers on her head woven into her hair and looking as if it belonged there Stunned to silence I could only gasp and blink my eyes You left cigarette butts all over the place No one ever comes here It took me a while to figure it out I was right you are an artist and I think I know what you are drawing May I see The high pitch to her voice was gone and replaced with a soft female huskiness that I felt rather than heard I stuttered out my reply still recovering from the shock of her being here Sure uh I don't mind Thanks Some artists won't let you see until it is finished I followed her with my eyes as she moved behind me and leaned down looking over my shoulder to share the perspective I could see her head move slightly from side to side and then up and down as she compared the canvas to the scene before us Oh Gosh I had a little shiver I see what you want Wow And it works I can almost see the water moving in the river And it is like the trees and bushes ah are alive and aware of what the river brings Oh Then she moved alongside the chair and moved her head quickly from canvas to scene That tree is not there Oh I see It needed to be there She continued shifting her glance and pointed at both the canvas and the natural scene surrounding us Then she stopped and paused and folded her arms across her chest After a moment she turned and walked slowly away and paced in a small circle a few steps away After a bit she turned and walked back paused to my left and a little in front of me and looked intensely down at my face Some artists don't take suggestions well She left the words just hanging I studied her face as she kept my gaze Fragile sculpted lines fine lines formed her face High forehead wide set eyes Eyes God An almost translucent blue that seemed to draw me into her Amazing stunning a small mouth not full lipped or thin but warm and almost petulant and teasing and uplifted at each corner with a small crease of shadowed muscle on just one side Oh to try to capture her face You always wear that beard I think my staring upset her You always wear a wreath of flowers in your hair She smiled and colored slightly and made a little titter I love this place I came here to dance as a young girl I dress like the place makes me feel I am so happy you see it too Now I was a little embarrassed her open honesty was real and it touched me I turned back to look at my canvas again Cherished
