Sight Word Readers Kita book, 2017-11-23 Sight word acquisition is an important building block in the construction of a child's ability to read. Once she is able to read all of the words on Dolch's lists, for example, she has access to up to 75% of what is printed in almost any piece of children's literature. How exactly do teachers and parents help children develop their stores of sight words? There are several proven techniques that any adult can use to teach sight words. Whichever strategies are employed, the best success is seen when one adult works with a small number of children at a time. The more one-on-one time a child has learning and practicing sight words with an adult, the greater his chances to integrating them into his long-term memory.

Teaching Sight Words With Pictures Many learners think in pictures. Whether we realize it or not, we often visualize what we are attempting to learn to help solidify the information in our memories. Think about the last time you needed to get somewhere you hadn't been before. Even if you used written directions instead of a pictorial map, you probably had a number of visual markers such as unusual sights or signs to help you learn how to get there. Presenting children with illustrations of sight words along with their print versions helps them make important connections between the object and the word. Flashcards or posters with a colorful picture and the word written under it are excellent sight word teaching tools. In addition, teachers or parents can have children draw their own pictures of each word on the same page to help them link the print with the visual.

Listening to and Saying Sight Words Sight words are not only frequently used in writing; they are also essential to conversational English. Because most of the Dolch sight words are already in children's verbal vocabularies, learning to read them is simply a matter of connecting the print word to the oral version in their prior knowledge banks. Parents and teachers should make explicit connections between the print version of a word and its sound. Pointing to a word while repeating it is one way to do this. Also, adults should have children say the sight words to help them become actively involved in their learning. This can be as simple as asking them to repeat a sight word while writing it or as involved as having the child search through a pile of sight words written on index cards or sentence strips to find a word that best completes a sentence you have written.

Teaching Sight Words Through Repetition Children do not learn new words by being exposed to them only once. Repetition is key to sight word acquisition. Young readers should be given opportunities to read and write a new sight word multiple times. Repetitive reading of texts featuring certain sight words is one strategy for helping children commit these words to memory. Also, to practice spelling sight words, parents and teachers can have children write and say aloud words several times. When a child writes and says the word at least five times in a row, she is more likely to commit it to memory. To subtly help children mentally repeat sight words, parents or teachers can create Dolch word walls. As a new sight word is learned, it is written in large print on a sentence strip or piece of paper and hung up on the wall in a location where the child is likely to see it often. Not only will repetitive glancing at the word reinforce it in the child's memory, it is also easily accessible for the parent or teacher to refer to when talking with the child about it.

Sight Words in Context When children see words used in natural ways rather than in isolation they are more likely to remember them because they develop an understanding of the word's significance and meaning The ebook has 50 sight word phrases with lovely pictures Wish your parents a happy fruitful time with their dear children

Sight Words Dnealian Handwriting Workbook in Cursive: Practice Writing Complete Dolch Sight Word List with Lined Paper for Preschool Kids, Kindergarten Professional Schoolprep, 2019-03-14. Sight words are critical to reading, not only because they are used so frequently but also because many of them cannot easily be sounded out or illustrated. Because they are used so often, it is important that readers be able to recognize these words on sight. This workbook aims to help children memorize those words by practicing reading, tracing, coloring, and writing, which is a fun learning and help them automatically recognize these words in print within three seconds. Ask your child to write the word 5-10 times in this journal or on a piece of paper, and you will see the great outcome.

Five Minutes to Site Word Fluency Elizabeth Chapin-Pinotti, 2015-09-01. Differentiated site word practice. 37 site word printables. These blackline masters help students learn site words by reading passages and writing sentences, and then repeating the process. Site words are the most commonly used words in reading and writing and represent about 67% of words students encounter in daily text These words are often grouped and learned by grade level The site words contained herein are the first one hundred plus essential words from subsequent lists designed to help struggling and early readers recognize them automatically The following passages are great for increasing the fluency of beginning readers They start out easy and become increasingly difficult but not too difficult The passages may be used as bell ringers buddy work and homework practice or all three as research indicates that repeated reading of the same passage helps increase fluency The passages are basic and enable students to read from simple to more complex sentences as they become more familiar with the particular site word around which each passage is written Research also indicates that memorizing site words by list is less effective and less desirable than through authentic passage reading and writing exercises The value of identifying and truly learning site words exists within reading practice and even phonics lessons Farrell Osenga and Hunter 2013 that mimic genuine reading work That s why we ve designed our worksheets to isolate each word put it in a passage and then require students to think about the word as they write their own sentences and then go back and re read what they wrote *I Like...
