global myths while others fade away What becomes known and seen as a global iconic event In Stories without Borders Julia Sonnevend considers the ways in which we recount and remember news stories of historic significance Focusing on journalists covering the fall of the Berlin Wall and on subsequent retellings of the event in a variety of ways from Legoland reenactments to slabs of the Berlin Wall installed in global cities Sonnevend discusses how certain events become built up so that people in many parts of the world remember them for long periods of time She argues that five dimensions determine the viability and longevity of international news events First a foundational narrative must be established with certain preconditions Next the established narrative becomes universalized and a mythical message developed This message is then condensed and encapsulated in a simple phrase a short narrative and a recognizable visual scene Counter narratives emerge that reinterpret events and in turn facilitate their diffusion across multiple media platforms and changing social and political contexts Sonnevend examines these five elements through the developments of November 9 1989 what came to be known as the fall of the Berlin Wall Stories Without Borders concludes with a discussion of how global iconic events have an enduring effect on individuals and societies pointing out that after common currencies military alliances and international courts have failed stories may be all that we have to bring hope and unity International Media Research John R. Corner, Philip Schlesinger, Professor Philip R Schlesinger, Roger Silverstone, 2004-01-14 International Media Research offers a rigorous and critical review of key approaches and concerns that have recently defined the field of media research In this clearly argued collection of essays the contributors analyze and reflect upon dominant themes and debates that have made media research an increasingly important element of cultural theory The volume begins with a critical evaluation of the work of the leading media scholar Elihu Katz and continues with an exploration of the relationship between media studies and adjacent disciplines cultural studies and gender and sexuality Contributors drawn from Britain America Canada and Belgium consider the relationships between media research and media policy in different national and international contexts Focusing on the European Union East Central Europe North America and Latin America chapters assess the impact of social economic and political circumstances on policy debates and the shaping of the research agenda The final chapter adopts a transatlantic perspective in tracing and analysing the history of the media's role in reporting war
