Media Technologies Essays On Communication Materiality And Society Inside Technology:

Media Technologies Tarleton Gillespie, Pablo J. Boczkowski, Kirsten A. Foot, 2014-01-17 Scholars from communication and media studies join those from science and technology studies to examine media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena In recent years scholarship around media technologies has finally shed the assumption that these technologies are separate from and powerfully determining of social life looking at them instead as produced by and embedded in distinct social cultural and political practices Communication and media scholars have increasingly taken theoretical perspectives originating in science and technology studies STS while some STS scholars interested in information technologies have linked their research to media studies inquiries into the symbolic dimensions of these tools In this volume scholars from both fields come together to advance this view of media technologies as complex sociomaterial phenomena The contributors first address the relationship between materiality and mediation considering such topics as the lived realities of network infrastructure The contributors then highlight media technologies as always in motion held together through the minute unobserved work of many including efforts to keep these technologies alive Contributors Pablo J Boczkowski Geoffrey C Bowker Finn Brunton Gabriella Coleman Gregory J Downey Kirsten A Foot Tarleton Gillespie Steven J Jackson Christopher M Kelty Leah A Lievrouw Sonia Livingstone Ignacio Siles Jonathan Sterne Lucy Suchman Fred Turner Research Handbook on Privacy and Data Protection Law González, Gloria, Van Brakel, Rosamunde, De Hert, Paul, 2022-03-15 This Research Handbook is an insightful overview of the key rules concepts and tensions in privacy and data protection law It highlights the increasing global significance of this area of law illustrating the many complexities in the field through a blend of theoretical and empirical perspectives Producing Power Sonja D. Schmid, 2015-02-06 An examination of how the technical choices social hierarchies economic structures and political dynamics shaped the Soviet nuclear industry leading up to Chernobyl The Chernobyl disaster has been variously ascribed to human error reactor design flaws and industry mismanagement Six former Chernobyl employees were convicted of criminal negligence they defended themselves by pointing to reactor design issues Other observers blamed the Soviet style of ideologically driven economic and industrial management In Producing Power Sonja Schmid draws on interviews with veterans of the Soviet nuclear industry and extensive research in Russian archives as she examines these alternate accounts Rather than pursue one definitive explanation she investigates how each of these narratives makes sense in its own way and demonstrates that each implies adherence to a particular set of ideas about high risk technologies human machine interactions organizational methods for ensuring safety and productivity and even about the legitimacy of the Soviet state She also shows how these attitudes shaped and were shaped by the Soviet nuclear industry from its very beginnings Schmid explains that Soviet experts established nuclear power as a driving force of social not just technical progress She examines the Soviet nuclear industry's dual origins in weapons and electrification programs and she traces the emergence of nuclear power experts as a professional community Schmid also fundamentally

reassesses the design choices for nuclear power reactors in the shadow of the Cold War's arms race Schmid's account helps us understand how and why a complex sociotechnical system broke down Chernobyl while unique and specific to the Soviet experience can also provide valuable lessons for contemporary nuclear projects Developer's Dilemma Casey

O'Donnell, 2014-11-21 Step inside the shoes of video game creators in this fascinating look at game development and how it can inform our understanding of work Rank and file game developers bring videogames from concept to product and yet their work is almost invisible hidden behind the famous names of publishers executives or console manufacturers In this book Casey O'Donnell examines the creative collaborative practice of typical game developers His investigation of why game developers work the way they do sheds light on our understanding of work the organization of work and the market forces that shape and are shaped by media industries O'Donnell shows that the ability to play with the underlying systems technical conceptual and social is at the core of creative and collaborative practice which is central to the New Economy When access to underlying systems is undermined so too is creative collaborative process Drawing on extensive fieldwork in game studios in the United States and India O'Donnell stakes out new territory empirically conceptually and methodologically Mimicking the structure of videogames the book is divided into worlds within which are levels and each world ends with a boss fight a rant about lessons learned and tools mastered O'Donnell describes the process of videogame development from pre production through production considering such aspects as experimental systems socially mandatory overtime and the perpetual startup machine that exhausts young initially enthusiastic workers He links work practice to broader systems of publishing manufacturing and distribution introduces the concept of a privileged actor intra internetwork and describes patent and copyright enforcement by industry and the state Low Power to the People Christina

Dunbar-Hester, 2014-11-07 The United States ushered in a new era of small scale broadcasting in 2000 when it began issuing low power FM LPFM licenses for noncommercial radio stations around the country Over the next decade several hundred of these newly created low wattage stations took to the airwaves This book describes the practices of an activist organization focused on LPFM during this era Publisher's description Beyond Imported Magic Eden Medina, Ivan da Costa

Marques, Christina Holmes, 2014-08-15 Studies challenging the idea that technology and science flow only from global North to South The essays in this volume study the creation adaptation and use of science and technology in Latin America They challenge the view that scientific ideas and technology travel unchanged from the global North to the global South the view of technology as imported magic They describe not only alternate pathways for innovation invention and discovery but also how ideas and technologies circulate in Latin American contexts and transnationally The contributors' explorations of these issues and their examination of specific Latin American experiences with science and technology offer a broader more nuanced understanding of how science technology politics and power interact in the past and present The essays in this book use methods from history and the social sciences to investigate forms of local creation and use of technologies the circulation

Impact of context-aware recommender systems on habitual listening patterns ,2017-11-21 Seminar paper from the year 2017 in the subject Musicology Miscellaneous grade 1 0 language English abstract With the ubiquitous availability and rapid travelling of information networked media environments confront consumers with an abundance of information which they can not handle by themselves As consequence of that digital media platforms such as Spotify make use of recommender systems that suggest items based on anticipated user preferences Thereby algorithms assist users to navigate huge databases of items Recommender systems turn out to be one of the most powerful tools to cope with information overload On the other hand digital music platforms afford user with new opportunities to add share comment or rank items and thus facilitate the formation of participatory music communities However very little is known about the socio cultural consequences of computer mediated decision making processes Design Issues ,2013 Wired Shut Tarleton Gillespie,2007 While the public and the media have been distracted by the story of Napster warnings about the evils of piracy and lawsuits by the recording and film industries the enforcement of copyright law in the digital world has quietly shifted from regulating copying to regulating the design of technology Lawmakers and commercial interests are pursuing what might be called a technical fix instead of specifying what can and cannot be done legally with a copyrighted work this new approach calls for the strategic use of encryption technologies to build standards of copyright directly into digital devices so that some uses are possible and others rendered impossible In Wired Shut Tarleton Gillespie examines this shift to technical copy protection and its profound political economic and cultural implications Gillespie reveals that the real story is not the technological controls themselves but the political economic and cultural arrangements being put in place to make them work He shows that this approach to digital copyright depends on new kinds of alliances among content and technology industries legislators regulators and the courts and is changing the relationship between law and technology in the process The film and music industries he claims are deploying copyright in order to funnel digital culture into increasingly commercial patterns that threaten to undermine the democratic potential of a network society In this broad context Gillespie examines three recent controversies over digital copyright the failed effort to develop copy protection for portable music players with the Strategic Digital Music Initiative SDMI the encryption system used in DVDs and the film industry's legal response to the tools that challenged them and the attempt by the FCC to mandate the broadcast flag copy protection system for digital television In each he argues that whether or not such technical constraints ever succeed the political alignments required will profoundly shape the future of cultural expression in a digital age
