Mining The Environment And Indigenous Development Conflicts:

Mining, the Environment, and Indigenous Development Conflicts Saleem H. Ali, 2009-08-01 From sun baked Black Mesa to the icy coast of Labrador native lands for decades have endured mining ventures that have only lately been subject to environmental laws and a recognition of treaty rights Yet conflicts surrounding mining development and indigenous peoples continue to challenge policy makers This book gets to the heart of resource conflicts and environmental impact assessment by asking why indigenous communities support environmental causes in some cases of mining development but not in others Saleem Ali examines environmental conflicts between mining companies and indigenous communities and with rare objectivity offers a comparative study of the factors leading to those conflicts Mining the Environment and Indigenous Development Conflicts presents four cases from the United States and Canada the Navajos and Hopis with Peabody Coal in Arizona the Chippewas with the Crandon Mine proposal in Wisconsin the Chipewyan Inuits D n and Cree with Cameco in Saskatchewan and the Innu and Inuits with Inco in Labrador These cases exemplify different historical relationships with government and industry and provide an instance of high and low levels of Native resistance in each country Through these cases Ali analyzes why and under what circumstances tribes agree to negotiated mining agreements on their lands and why some negotiations are successful and others not Ali challenges conventional theories of conflict based on economic or environmental cost benefit analysis which do not fully capture the dynamics of resistance He proposes that the underlying issue has less to do with environmental concerns than with sovereignty which often complicates relationships between tribes and environmental organizations Activist groups he observes fail to understand such tribal concerns and often have problems working with tribes on issues where they may presume a common environmental interest This book goes beyond popular perceptions of environmentalism to provide a detailed picture of how and when the concerns of industry society and tribal governments may converge and when they conflict As demands for domestic energy exploration increase it offers clear guidance for such endeavors when native lands are involved

These cases exemplify different historical relationships with government and industry and provide an instance of high and low levels of Native resistance in each country Through these cases Ali analyzes why and under what circumstances tribes agree to negotiated mining agreements on their lands and why some negotiations are successful and others not Ali challenges conventional theories of conflict based on economic or environmental cost benefit analysis which do not fully capture the dynamics of resistance He proposes that the underlying issue has less to do with environmental concerns than with sovereignty which often complicates relationships between tribes and environmental organizations Activist groups he observes fail to understand such tribal concerns and often have problems working with tribes on issues where they may presume a common environmental interest This book goes beyond popular perceptions of environmentalism to provide a detailed picture of how and when the concerns of industry society and tribal governments may converge and when they conflict As demands for domestic energy exploration increase it offers clear guidance for such endeavors when native lands are involved

Treasures of the Earth Saleem H. Ali, 2009-01-01 Would the world be a better place if human societies were somehow able to curb their desires for material goods Saleem Ali s pioneering book links human wants and needs by providing a natural history of consumption and materialism with scientific detail and humanistic nuance It argues that simply disavowing consumption of materials is not likely to help in planning for a resource scarce future given global inequality development imperatives and our goals for a democratic global society Rather than suppress the creativity and desire to discover that is often embedded in the exploration and production of material goods which he calls the treasure impulse Ali proposes a new environmental paradigm one that accepts our need to consume treasure for cultural and developmental reasons but warns of our concomitant need to conserve In evaluating the impact of treasure consumption on resource rich countries he argues that there is a way to consume responsibly and alleviate global poverty

Routledge Handbook of Environmental Conflict and Peacebuilding Ashok Swain, Joakim Öjendal, 2018-04-17 The past two decades have witnessed the emergence of a large body of research examining the linkage between environmental scarcity violent conflict and cooperation However this environmental security polemic is still trying to deliver a well defined approach to achieving peace Studies are being undertaken to find the precise pathways by which cooperative actions are expected not only to pre empt or moderate resource conflicts but also to help diffuse cooperative behaviour to other disputed issues The recognition that environmental resources can contribute to violent conflict accentuates their potential significance as pathways for cooperation and the consolidation of peace in post conflict societies Conceived as a single and reliable reference source which will be a vital resource for students researchers and policy makers alike the Routledge Handbook of Environmental Conflict and Peacebuilding presents a wide range of chapters written by key thinkers in the field organised into four key parts Part I Review of the concept and theories Part II Review of thematic approaches resources scarcity intervention adaptation and peacebuilding Part III Case studies Middle East Iraq Jordan Liberia Nepal Colombia Philippines Part IV

Social Movements Contesting Natural Resource Development John F. Devlin,2019-10-22 Presenting a broad range of case studies this book explores rural social movements contesting natural resource development initiatives Natural resource development takes multiple forms including infrastructure corridors mines dams resource processing plants and pipelines Many of which are driven by economic valuations whilst social and environmental effects are given limited consideration In this volume the authors discuss the emergence process and outcomes of social movements with respect to these natural resource development projects including examples of confrontation seeking to either block developments or promote alternative development approaches such as agritourism The examples taken from Africa Asia North America Europe and Latin America demonstrate the diversity of struggles stimulated by natural resource development including both immediate and longer term effects repertoires of action political and cultural work Taken together the case studies provide a rich overview of current movements engaged in resisting the neoliberal agenda of global resource exploitation This book will be key reading for scholars interested in social movements natural resource development environmental policy and development studies It will also be of interest to activists engaged in mobilizations stimulated by natural resource development projects

Life and Death Matters Barbara Rose Johnston, 2016-06-03 The first edition of Life and Death Matters was a breakthrough text centralizing the experiences of those on the front lines of environmental crises and forging new paradigms for understanding how crises emerge and how different groups of actors respond to them This second edition fully updated with both expanded and new chapters once again provides a benchmark for the field and opens important pathways for further research Authors reassess the state of scholarship and grassroots activism in a new century when social and environmental systems are being reconceptualised within post 9 11 security and biosecurity frameworks when global warming and resource scarcity are not fears but realities when global power and politics are being realigned and when ecocide ethnocide and genocide are daily tragedies This bold new edition of Life and Death Matters will be a widely used textbook and essential reading for students scholars and policy makers

The Literary Heritage of the Environmental Justice Movement Lance Newman, 2019-05-11 The Literary Heritage of the Environmental Justice Movement showcases environmental literature from writers who fought for women s rights native rights workers power and the abolition of slavery during the Romantic Era Many Romantic texts take flight from society and enact solitary white male encounters with a feminine nature However the symbolic landscapes of Romanticism were often radicalized by writers like Olaudah Equiano Frederick Douglass William Apess George Copway Mary Wollstonecraft Lydia Maria Child John Clare and Henry Thoreau These authors showed how the oppression of human beings and the exploitation of nature are the twin driving forces of capitalism and colonialism In addition to spotlighting new kinds of environmental literature this book also reinterprets familiar texts by figures like William Blake Nathaniel Hawthorne Mary Shelley William Wordsworth and Walt Whitman and it shows how these household figures were writing in conversation with their radical contemporaries

The Palgrave Handbook of Environmental Labour Studies Nora Räthzel, Dimitris Stevis, David Uzzell, 2021-08-30 In this comprehensive Handbook scholars from across the globe explore the relationships between workers and nature in the context of the environmental crises They provide an invaluable overview of a fast growing research field that bridges the social and natural sciences Chapters provide detailed perspectives of environmental labour studies environmental struggles of workers indigenous peoples farmers and commoners in the Global South and North The relations within and between organisations that hinder or promote environmental strategies are analysed including the relations between workers and environmental

Socio-Environmental Movements Against Extractivism

Sebastian Smart, 2025-11-01 This book offers an unprecedented exploration into the heart of socio environmental conflicts and mobilisations sparked by extractive projects in Latin America with a keen focus on Chile's unique position. It provides readers with a comprehensive understanding of the intricate power dynamics between communities, corporations and the state over environmental and territorial disputes. Delving into the contentious politics perspective, this book examines how political opportunities, organisational resources and discursive frames developed by communities and the strategic mobilisation of law play a crucial role in shaping resistance against extractive projects. These conflicts are not just local disputes but are emblematic of broader environmental and political economic transformations that challenge our understanding of sustainability, governance and community rights. The relevance of this topic cannot be overstated in today's global context where environmental issues and Indigenous rights are increasingly at the forefront of political debates. By analysing the micro foundations of contentious politics through the lens of Chile's socio environmental movements, this book sheds light on the mechanisms that underpin socio legal mobilisation and protest. It offers a detailed comparison of three significant social contestation processes in Chile, providing insights into the varying strategies, aims and resources of communities that stand against the environmental impacts of extractive industries. Furthermore, this book critically engages with classical theories of social mobilisation, adding empirical evidence and theoretical advancements to the discussion. It also considers the impact of geographical location, the phase of extractive projects and the composition of social movements on the effectiveness of mobilisation efforts both in the courtroom and on the streets.

The Oxford Handbook of Law and Anthropology Marie-Claire Foblets, Mark Goodale, Maria Sapignoli, Olaf Zenker, 2022 Represents a comprehensive and interdisciplinary treatment to the field of law and anthropology. Decenters the standard Anglo Euro centric bias that prevails in both law and anthropology. Gives unique perspectives on issues of contemporary relevance. Provides the historical background but focuses on the future of the field. Book jacket

Trajectories in Environmental Politics Graeme Hayes, Sikina Jinnah, Prakash Kashwan, David M. Konisky, Sherilyn Macgregor, John M. Meyer, Anthony R. Zito, 2022-03-30 This book explores the dominant framings and paradigms of environmental politics, the relationship between academic analysis and environmental politics and reflects on the first thirty years of the journal Environmental Politics. The book has two purposes. The first is to identify and discuss the key themes that have driven scholarship in the field of environmental politics over the last three decades and to highlight how this has also led to oversights and silences and the marginalisation of important forms of analysis and thought. As several chapters in the book explore, problem solving frameworks have increasingly taken away space from more radical systemic challenge and critique as the key themes of environmental politics have become ever more central to the field of politics as a whole and as our understandings of social and environmental crisis become ever clearer and more urgent. The second purpose of the volume is to map out a series of new and developing agendas for environmental politics The chapters in this volume focus foremost on questions of justice materiality and power Discussing state violence multispecies justice epistemic injustice the circular economy NGOs parties green transition and urban climate governance they call above all for greater attention to intersectionality and interdisciplinarity and for centering key insights about power relations and socio economic inequalities into increasingly widespread yet also often depoliticised topics in the study of environmental politics The chapters in this book were originally published as a special issue of Environmental Politics

Civil Resistance and Violent Conflict in Latin America Cécile Mouly, Esperanza Hernández Delgado, 2019-01-21 This book explores distinct forms of civil resistance in situations of violent conflict in cases across Latin America drawing important lessons learned for nonviolent struggles in the region and beyond The authors analyse campaigns against armed actors in situations of internal armed conflict against private sector companies that seek to exploit natural resources and against the state in defence of housing rights to cite only some scenarios of violent conflict in which people in Latin America have organized to resist imposition by powerful actors and or confront violence and oppression Each of the nine cases studied looks at the violent context in which civil resistance took place its modality its results and the factors that influenced these as well as the challenges faced offering useful insights for scholars and practitioners alike

Handbook of Environmental Sociology Beth Schaefer Caniglia, Andrew Jorgenson, Stephanie A. Malin, Lori Peek, David N. Pellow, Xiaorui Huang, 2021-11-01 This handbook defines the contours of environmental sociology and invites readers to push boundaries in their exploration of this important subdiscipline It offers a comprehensive overview of the evolution of environmental sociology and its role in this era of intensified national and global environmental crises Its timely frameworks and high impact chapters will assist in navigating this moment of great environmental inequality and uncertainty The handbook brings together an outstanding group of scholars who have helped redefine the scope of environmental sociology and expand its reach and impact Their contributions speak to key themes of the subdiscipline inequality justice population social movements and health Chapter topics include environmental demography food systems animals and the environment climate change disasters and much more The emphasis on public environmental sociology and the forward thinking approach of this collection is what sets this volume apart This handbook can serve as an introduction for students new to environmental sociology or as an insightful treatment that current experts can use to further their own research and publication It will leave readers with a strong understanding of environmental sociology and the motivation to apply it to their work

Large-scale Mines and Local-level Politics Colin Filer, Pierre-Yves Le Meur, 2017-10-20 Despite the difference in their populations and political status New Caledonia and Papua New Guinea have comparable levels of economic dependence on the extraction and export of mineral resources For this reason the costs and benefits of large scale mining projects for indigenous communities has been a major political issue in both jurisdictions and one that has come to be negotiated through multiple channels at different levels of political organisation The resource boom that took place in the early years of the current century has only served to intensify the political contests and conflicts that surround the distribution of social economic and environmental costs and benefits between community members and other stakeholders in the large scale mining industry However the mutual isolation of Anglophone and Francophone scholars has formed a barrier to systematic comparison of the relationship between large scale mines and local level politics in Papua New Guinea and New Caledonia despite their geographical proximity This collection of essays represents an effort to overcome this barrier but is also intended as a major contribution to the growth of academic and political debate about the social impact of the large scale mining industry in Melanesia and beyond
